

MOST OF BRITTANY PENINSULA IS CUT OFF

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

THE FAST-MOVING conquest of Brittany seems to be developing into an astonishing race to determine whether the speeding American armored columns can overrun the great peninsula with its magnificent ports before the weakened Germans can bring up reinforcements.

Thus far the Yanks haven't encountered any organized Nazi front, and resistance has been comparatively light. This has been due in considerable degree to the fact that the Hitlerites have had to pull many troops out of Brittany to defend their tottering Normandy line.

Of course we don't know how strongly the ports of Brest, St. Nazaire and Lorient—our chief objectives—may be garrisoned, however, we get some measure of enemy weakness in our walk-over at the Breton capital of Rennes. This is a pivotal rail and highway center and the Nazis would defend it to the best of their ability.

If the Germans aren't already loading the ports strongly, their prospects are slim. By capturing Rennes the Americans have severed the main railroad into the peninsula and one column is thrusting swiftly across the base of the big triangle towards St. Nazaire while another heads for Brest at the apex.

Although the southern two-thirds of the base is still open, the Allied air armada is rendering communications devilishly precarious. The sky navy is a major factor in the lightning movement which may lead Adolf to something about the blitz warfare he initiated in '38 with so much butchery and bombast.

The Breton peninsula is a pearl of great price. Not only will its fine ports greatly increase our capacity to pour troops, and materiel into France but—and this is of great importance—Hitler's U-boats have been using Brest, Lorient and St. Nazaire as prime bases from which to raid Allied shipping.

BERLIN NOW ADMITS that Marshal Rommel, field commander on the invasion front, suffered concussion of the brain, although he is said to be doing well. One wonders how much the Nazis have felt the loss of his undoubted skill. They likely wish now he could have remained on the job, to settle the argument with his old antagonist, Montgomery.

For my money Monty is the better man by a long way. I followed the tracks of the Montgomery-Rommel duel from El Alamein to Bengasi, close to 600 miles, and anyone who saw the pattern in the sands of the desert couldn't doubt who was top man.

Allied progress in the battle of France is indeed gratifying. As Montgomery says, "we are hitting the Hun a good crack." So are the Red armies, and the Allies in Italy still, we shouldn't let this good fortune blind us to the fact that this is the moment when we are expending our greatest volume of materiel on the flaming fronts. We mustn't slacken the essential production for a minute or we shall lose our chance for an early knock-out. While we may have a good supply of some types of equipment, our fighting men are expending other materiel in such vast quantities that we can't keep up with it unless we go all out all the time.

ARMY TRANSIT MOVES IMPEDED BY STRIKERS

Effort to End Philadelphia Tie-Up Only Partially Successful

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—An immediate investigation of the Philadelphia Transit System strike to determine whether there has been any violation of federal law was ordered today by Attorney General Biddle.

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—Bands of strikers threatened violence today to operators attempting to restore service on Philadelphia's paralyzed transportation system and the Army, which seized the lines last night, announced that persons with apparent enemy sympathies had prevented resumption of service.

"Protection will be provided on the trolleys, buses, subways and elevated lines," Maj. Gen. Philip Hayes, commanding general of the Third Service command, said after only a few subway and elevated trains and the trolleys on one route had made runs.

Hayes took control on orders of President Roosevelt last night after the stoppage had stranded hundreds of thousands, curtailed vital war production and given rise to race violence.

Even as the Army took over, new clashes between whites and Negroes—with one shooting—were reported. Gen. Hayes said would-be workers were kept from work "by threats made by persons who are apparently more interested in aiding the Axis than in seeing to it that essential transportation is provided for Philadelphia's war workers."

"Delay in restoring full operation is measured in the blood of American soldiers overseas," he said. "Those who obstruct our operation have that blood on their hands."

He promised full legal penalties for anyone who interferes with service and said "it is obvious that the overwhelming majority of transit employees are conscious of the supreme obligation they have to our fighting men."

Only 12 elevated trains, seven subway trains and the trolleys on one route had operated up to 8 a. m., three hours after the Army's Turn to ARMY TRANSIT, Page 3

SALEM PLAYERS CLUB OPENS NEW SEASON TUESDAY

Next Tuesday will mark the opening of a new year of activity for the Salem Players club when the initial meeting of its second season is held at the clubrooms. Chief feature of the meeting, called for 8 p. m., will be the announcement by the play reading committee of the entire schedule of plays to be given during the coming season. According to present plans, four major plays will be presented, together with a special production during the Christmas period.

Selection of all plays in advance will permit the club to make more complete plans and arrangements for each presentation and will give Salem play-goers a better idea of what is to be offered in the way of stage entertainment. Tentative dates also will be announced, and directors may be chosen.

Another feature of the Tuesday meeting will be the passage of new by-laws and articles of incorporation of the organization, inasmuch as final arrangements have been completed for incorporating the club as a non-profit group. A final report on the club's first year shows that more than $1,400 was spent in the presentation of four plays and in carrying on other theatrical activities.

Tuesday's meeting will be open to all persons who may be interested in either joining the club or assisting in any way in the production of plays this year.

OUTING IS HELD BY FARM BUREAU

The Butler, Salem, Perry Township farm bureau held its mid-summer meeting at Centennial park Tuesday evening with D. R. Standfield of the educational department of the Ohio Farm bureau, Columbus, as guest speaker. His topic was "Building For The Future." Mrs. Joshua Henderson had the report on the "Bugle." Nancy and Mary Jane Lesik entertained with songs. Talks were given by Carroll Guindon and Vincent Judge. After the lunch movies of the 1941 field day of the Ohio Farm bureau were shown.

REDS SHATTER VISTULA LINE

Only 91 Miles from German Silesia After Making Breakthrough

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW, Aug. 4.—Russian hosts which smashed the German Vistula river line advanced swiftly today to within 91 miles of German Silesia while other army groups in the north shelled towns and villages inside East Prussia from positions three miles from the frontier.

Another triumph in the Carpathians carried the Red army within five miles of Czechoslovakia after chasing the Germans from Jabonkow, a short distance from the crest of Uzk pass, through which Russia invaded Hungary in the first World war.

Russian forces moved within 58 miles of Krakow, fifth city of Old Poland, over difficult hill country. In this area west of the Vistula, some 110 miles below beleaguered Warsaw, the Russians were within 30 miles of Tarnow and 28 of Kielce (Pop. 58,200), last large Nazi bastion before Krakow.

Official sources were silent on the siege of Warsaw, where Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's army group was pulled up just east of the Polish capital. In the Baltic states, Russian tanks were patrolling the shores of the Gulf of Riga 25 miles west of Riga and Pravda said they were striking both east toward that capital of 393,000 and also west toward Liepaja, Latvia's second city and a west coast seaport.

All along the 1,000-mile front from the Baltic to the Carpathians, the Germans were reported rolling up reserves, particularly in the Warsaw and Vistula breach area. Concentrations of the German air force appeared in a desperate attempt to check Russian lunges.

One Injured When Plane Comes Down

LISBON, Aug. 4.—The pilot and two passengers in a private plane which crashed on a farm near Salineville yesterday enroute to Holland, Mich., escaped serious injury. The plane owned by an Indiana Rubber Co. was piloted by D. A. Likens of Garrett, Ind., who crashed landed near the community of Prosperity after he attempted to switch to his auxiliary gas tank and he found the fuel line clogged. The plane was flying at about 2,000 feet. Clipping off tree tops at it landed, the ship came to rest about 12 feet from the top of a 40-foot deep gravel pit. Undercarriage and a wing were damaged. One of the passengers who received a lacerated nose was treated at a Lisbon doctor's office before proceeding by train to Holland.

Lausche Is Defended In Water Issue By Kirwin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland, criticized by Rep. Earl R. Lewis (R.-Ohio) for a water shortage in Cleveland, today had a champion in Rep. Michael J. Kirwan (D.-Ohio).

Kirwan, answering assertions by Lewis that Lausche was responsible for the city's problem, said the system was installed before Lausche took office.

Drouth Makes Drastic Cut In Farm, Garden Production

Although wheat, hay and oats crops escaped serious damage by being harvested before the severe drouth, corn and potatoes in this region will suffer a 25 to 50 per cent loss, according to Floyd Lower, Columbiana county agricultural agent.

The late sweet corn will be negligible, while production of gardens and vegetables, which are suffering severe damage, will drop nearly 50 per cent of the hoped-for goal.

Pastures are completely burned out, producing a shortage to acute that farmers are already feeding hay to their stock. Winter feed stocks may run far short of the necessary amount due to the early use.

Large Water Basin Program Is Backed By Manufacturers

Manufacturers of Salem urged construction of a three million gallon storage basin southwest of the city at the earliest possible moment, when they discussed the city water situation with city officials last night.

City Engineer F. S. Barchhoff explained that a basin of that capacity would provide for the water needs of Salem for several years. An entire capacity would not be used at first, however, as no new source of supply has been developed. The basin will make it possible for the waterworks department to meet demand loads of the manufacturing plants at once, and any sudden load would not jeopardize the reserve needed for fighting fires. That is what the manufacturers are seeking, as demand loads usually cannot be anticipated, and the desire is to have sufficient water for sudden demands.

City officials were guests of the Manufacturers association at dinner last night in the Lape hotel. Mayor R. R. Johnson, Summer Director F. K. Wilson, C. F. Zimmerman, president of the council, and Arch Wentz, chairman of council's water committee, assured the manufacturers their plans for the large basin would be pushed rapidly. The estimated cost is $100,000.

SALEM CHINA CO.'S PICNIC ON SUNDAY

Dancing, music and contests for people of all ages will be held. John Ehrhart, chairman, said employes and families are asked to be at Placencia for the basket lunch at 1 p. m. Plans for the purchase of the instrument were discussed at the club's noon business meeting yesterday at the Memorial building.

G.O.P. CLAIMS F. D. R. FAILED TO COOPERATE

State, Federal Breach Produced Costly Misunderstandings, Report

By JACK BELL

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 4.—The 26 Republican governors, asserting they had achieved "unity of thought" with Presidential Candidate Thomas E. Dewey, charged today that the asserted failure of President Roosevelt to exchange views with state executives had produced "costly misunderstandings" in the past.

Summing up two days of conferences on what Dewey has called "areas of friction" between the states and the federal government, the GOP governors asserted it was their intention to work closely with Dewey if he becomes president.

Calling for post-war simplification and reduction of taxes, the governors' conference said in other conclusions that the state and national governments must create "clear-cut labor and industrial policies," must develop coordinated social welfare services and should work together in the use and control of war resources.

In their general conclusions the governors charged there had been "a constant grasping for power on the part of the federal government." They said that only through cooperation and "sympathetic understanding" could this nation's system of government be made to work.

Common Solution of Problems
"This can best be accomplished when all parts of the country are represented in the councils of the federal government," the report said, "and when by personal contact the president of the United States and the governors of the United States achieve that unity of national purpose which transcends partisanship and strives unselfishly for the solution of their common problems."

"For the past 10 years, entire regions of our country have been without representation in the cabinet or administrative agencies of the federal government. During that period the governors of the states have never once been invited to exchange views with the President of the United States. Both of

PAPER SALVAGE DRIVE PLANNED ON AUGUST 13, 20

Collection of waste paper—America's No. 1 war material shortage at the present time—will be conducted by the Salem Auxiliary Fire department, a Civilian Defense organization, on Aug. 13 and 20, it was decided at the monthly meeting last night.

According to present plans, the town will be covered in the two Sunday collections. The sections to be canvassed each day has not been determined, but will be announced early next week.

With paper now listed as the most pressing war shortage in the country, Salem citizens are being urged by the firemen's auxiliary to gather all the waste paper they can locate, bundle or stack it as neatly as possible, and place it, along with properly prepared tin cans and other scrap metal, either on their front porches or in a convenient place outside their homes.

City Salvage Chairman Arthur V. Smith emphasized the importance of placing the valuable materials in a place safe from rain, in case the weather should be bad on either of the two Sundays.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 4.—The Americans were believed tonight to have swept close to St. Nazaire, virtually completing the cut-off of the Brest peninsula. Advanced forces were believed well beyond any points thus far officially disclosed.

(By Associated Press.)

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 4.—United States armor and infantry, spreading in a widening and lengthening tide over Brittany, reached within 43 miles of the two big ports of Nantes and St. Nazaire on the Loire today and cut off most of the peninsula.

While bursting through country 20 miles south of Rennes, the American forces also spread 27 miles west of that rail and highway hub in the center of Brittany, coming within 108 miles of Brest.

Yet other forces advanced in rapid strides to within two miles of Evran, seven miles south of captured Dinan on the north side of Brittany, and jumped off to attack the German-held north coast city of St. Malo which had been by-passed in the strike to Dinan.

Fighting raged in Rennes along streets leading to the heart of the town, where an entrenched but fanatic enemy garrison was holding out. The Americans struck due south close to Bain-De-Bretagne, 17 miles south of Rennes and 43 miles from Nantes, a port city of 195,000 population on the Loire river.

They also were within five miles of Pipriac, 20 miles southwest of Rennes and 43 miles from St. Nazaire, the boat base and U. S. troop port in the first World war.

Although there still was fighting at Rennes, field dispatches said the position of the German garrison there was hopeless.

(Secretary Stimson in Washington yesterday announced the capture of Rennes and subsequent dispatches from correspondents at Supreme headquarters also told of the seizure of the city. These dispatches were based on the War department announcement and frontline reports that American troops had pushed beyond the communications center. Supreme headquarters itself did not announce capture of the city.)

In the westward push past Rennes, the Americans were reported approaching Mautron, 27 miles directly west, and within two miles of St. Meen Le Bretagne, nine miles to the northeast.

Brooms, nine miles northwest of St. Meen and 14 miles southwest of Dinan, also was reached in the westward drive.

Enemy Disorganized
St. Meen Le Bretagne is on the main road running almost down the center of the peninsula from Rennes to Brest. Both St. Meen and Mautron are about 108 miles from the big French naval base at the tip of Brittany.

Berlin, in its high command communique, said American troops were "engaging German base garrisons" after a breakthrough into Brittany, and reports from the front continued to stress that only this type of enemy troops was being met—troops which could not be expected to put up as strong resistance as front line outfits.

In speaking to Loheneac, five miles from Pipriac, the Americans were just 18 miles outside Redon, chief communications center of southern Brittany.

The Americans were 41 miles from Vannes, port on the south side of the peninsula, and 70 from Lorient, an important port and U-boat base to the west.

As American spearheads race on toward these great ports the German front of organized resistance in northwestern France shrank to a mere 35 miles from Vire to Caen.

THE GENERALS

Nomination of Lieut. Gen. Joseph Warren Stilwell, U. S. commander in Burma, to be a full general will create a fresh flurry of interest in the title. It is not an easy one to rationalize.

As befits the greatest war in history, the United States has more full generals than ever before—Marshall, Eisenhower, Arnold, MacArthur, and now, Stilwell. During World War I, its full generalships were held by Tasker H. Bliss and John J. Pershing. Pershing's generalship was made permanent in 1919.

As a general practice—the pun is intentional—generalships are bestowed temporarily. Thus, the man who serves as chief of staff is made a full general. That is the status at present of Gen. Marshall. It was the status of MacArthur when he was chief of staff from 1930 to 1935. He was recalled to active duty after his retirement as a major general, made a temporary lieutenant general and then a temporary full general. His permanent rank, like that of Stilwell, is major general.

Fortunately, there are few enough four star generals to be remembered without much trouble. George Washington does not head the list; there is no record that he ever was given the title of general, though he held the now overworked title of commander-in-chief in the Continental army from 1775 to 1783.

The list begins with Ulysses T. Grant and continues with William T. Sherman and Philip H. Sheridan. So much for the Civil war. It jumps then to John J. Pershing—and that is the big four. Aside from the generals now active—Marshall, MacArthur, Eisenhower and Arnold—the only others are those, including MacArthur, who held the post of chief of staff between the two wars. They are: Tasker H. Bliss, Peyton C. Marsh, Charles F. Summerall and Malin Craig. Gen. Stilwell is being nominated for distinguished company, but any general who can keep fighting in Asia without supplies or anything else to speak of needs all the encouragement he can get.

NECESSITY, NOT SYMPATHY

The maturity of American opinion about international affairs may be hastened by the necessity which has forced Turkey to long last to break with Germany and seems to be forcing Finland, at the northern extremity of Hitler's line of influence in eastern Europe, toward the same decision.

The same necessity has kept the Franco regime in Spain from yielding to its native inclination and has had similar effect in the Middle East and Sweden and Ireland. The Allies, themselves, are not bound together by sympathies, but by common necessities. The persistent attempt to justify their collaboration on a basis of something else—to find common ideological grounds for a military coalition among divergent peoples—has been the source of more misunderstanding and confusion than any single aspect of Allied activity.

The Turks are on our side not because they love us, but because Germany is being beaten. The Finns probably will end up on our side because they guessed wrong and were left high and dry by Germany's inability to maintain military contact with them when the Baltic front collapsed. Perhaps Spain will end the war on our side; it would be no stranger than the fact that Italy now is listed as a nominal ally.

The pressure of events is breaking up Germany's system of satellite and near-satellite states. The structure is collapsing day by day in Europe—and a climax is near. It is being undermined in South America—chiefly Argentina for which the Germans had high hopes. Military necessity is accomplishing what resolutions and pledges failed to accomplish—the disillusionment of Germany's fair weather friends in World War II.

POLITICAL WHIRLWINDS

Experts who threw up straws to find which way the wind is blowing in this week's primaries in New York and Missouri had better save their time.

In New York's 18th district, Vito Marcantonio, spokesman in congress for the city's pink fringe, and a candidate for nomination by the American Labor party, the Republican party and the Democratic party, won. He was opposed for the Democratic nomination by a Tammany politician, Martin Kennedy. Marcantonio customarily takes his party line from the Communists; he was, like many others of his ilk, anti-war and anti-United States up to the time that Russia was attacked by Germany and began to need help.

Hamilton Fish of New York's 23rd district was counted among the isolationists up to Pearl Harbor, and this was supposed to defeat him, but it didn't. He and Rep. Marcantonio, as far apart as the poles on virtually everything under the sun, have cleared their first hurdle on the race to another term in Washington. Meanwhile, in Missouri, Sen. Bennett Champ Clark, whose opponent promised voters to be 100 per cent for Franklin D. Roosevelt, right or wrong, was beaten, ostensibly because of his isolationist leanings. Oddly enough, Sen. Gerald Nye of North Dakota won re-nomination by a narrow speak last June 27 on an almost identical record.

In short, the experts are more than welcome to whatever they can make of straws blowing in a whirlwind—but depend on it they will be around in a few days with the whole thing reduced to a mathematical formula.

STILL SOLID

The Gallup poll, busy at its quadrennial task of telling voters how they are going to vote, reports that the deep south is still solidly Democratic, which surprises no one. But the poll also finds that in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Texas Mr. Roosevelt's percentage as of July 27 would have been somewhat less than his percentage as of election day four years ago. The defection ranges from a drop of 12 per cent in Mississippi to a mere 1 per cent in Arkansas and Georgia—an average of approximately 6 per cent for the eight states.

Since the average solidity of the same states in 1940 was 85 per cent, it is evident that it was to drop 6 percentage points every four years, the solid south would cease to be solid on or about 1970, barring unforeseen miracles. At that time, the two party system would have been instituted in the deep south and its 90-odd electoral votes would no longer be sewed up in advance. The prospect is only remotely encouraging, but it explains why, every four years, there is talk among politicians in the north about the possibility that this election may be the one that will make the difference. No doubt in the south the same vague hope is entertained about some day being able to pry Vermont out of the Republican column.

THE ATTENTION and energies seem to be focused on the enjoyments, social, convivial, romantic and emotional adventures rather than the practical and workaday. In spite of setbacks, trivial disappointments and reverses there may be prospect of thrills and excitements, with much stirring in connection with celebrations or parties. A tendency to extravagance of funds and forces, in this indulgence should be curbed, with prudence and discretion in all menacing situations, either in business, finance or personal engagements.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of surprise and commotion, with the pursuit of pleasure probably overshadowing all commonplace activities. The element of romance, adventure, hospitality and festivity may lure to over-indulgences or extravagances, with resultant regrets, loss or estrangements. Upheavals, change, new agreements or alliances should be wisely and prudently considered, lest there be penalties in health, funds and general wellbeing.

being who is the diagnostician. And one reason that idea is false is that the machine simply furnishes some data, some facts, which have to go through the diagnostician's human mind before they can be interpreted, before they fall into the right category to form the proper conclusion.

The other and perhaps better reason such ideas are erroneous is that no machine on earth is as delicate and as beautifully competent as the diagnostician's human eye.

When a trained diagnostician looks at any abnormality—I care not what it be—a lump under the skin, a pair of tonsils, an aching joint, he instinctively begins to make notes. It is red, he asks himself, is it tender, how long has it been there, is it an inflammation, or a new growth, or a degeneration, did it start somewhere else? And instinctively also he is fitting it into his acquaintance with the changes in human tissues, described by the science of pathology or diseased processes, until finally he has it classified. Then he knows more than any machine would ever be able to tell him, what the nature of this abnormal process is, what the cause is, what the outcome is likely to be, whether there is any way to cure or relieve it.

Extension of Vision
The basis of those judgments is largely the conditions which his eye has brought to him. Sometimes, as in the case of disease of the chest or the abdomen where it is located so deep the eye cannot see it, he depends on his fingers and his ears.

That is why any extension of vision is of such great value in medical work. We have had a good many such extensions in the last few years. Indeed the great value of the X-ray is that it is merely an extension of our eyes into opaque tissue. It reveals what we might see in bones, lungs, heart and stomach if we could tear aside the flesh. But it is no more than just the human eye operating under exceedingly favorable circumstances.

Then we have had quite an array of extensions of the eye into the cavities of the body by means of electric lighted instruments. The ophthalmoscope to see the retina of the eye was the first of these. Then came the otoscope to see the eardrum, and the laryngoscope to see the vocal cords. And then a series of eyes on sticks that could be thrust into the dark recesses of the body, the cystoscope to see the inside of the bladder and the proctoscope to see the inside of the rectum.

Peritonscope and Gastroscope
The latest of these extensions of the eye are the peritonscope and the gastroscope. The peritonscope is an electric lighted stick which can be thrust through a minute opening in the abdominal wall and by moving it around can be put into position to see all the organs of that region. Surgeons have long had a procedure they called an exploratory laparotomy. This was used in cases which had puzzled the attending physicians and surgeons and consisted of opening the abdomen as for an operation to see exactly what was present. The peritonscope does an exploratory laparotomy with a tenth of the fuss. None but a local anesthetic is required and the incision is no greater than enough to admit a lead pencil. Many cases supposed to be cancer have been found to be relatively benign gallbladder or uterine disease in this way.

The gastroscope performs the same function for the inside of the stomach. It is a flexible tube with an electric light and lenses in the end which the patient swallows so that the entire inside of the stomach can be visualized. Its great recognitions have been in the early recognition of cancer of the stomach—early enough so that they can be successfully removed surgically.

G. O. P. CLAIMS

These conditions have produced a misunderstanding and can and must be remedied." With most of the governors returning to their homes, Dewey remained in St. Louis to confer with labor, business, political and other leaders before entraining tonight for Pawling, N. Y., where he will spend the weekend.

Unanimous Conclusions

Detailed conclusions reached unanimously by the governors, who also organized politically for the presidential campaign, included a recommendation for coordination of federal and state systems to eliminate "double taxation."

In this connection, the Republican executives said that while there must be economy this did not mean the indiscriminate slashing and cutting of governmental budgets.

Calling for an end to the "duplication" of federal and local governmental expenses, the report said executives must be on the alert to see that public funds are not wasted and that the number of employees is no larger than is absolutely necessary.

Reorganization of the federal administration of welfare agencies was urged.

The report outlined a social welfare program in which the states and local communities would improve existing hospitalization, clinical treatment, visiting nurses and other health activities, with the work of existing agencies more closely integrated.

"There should be no political control of the profession of medicine," the report said.

The governors also called for "an immediate drastic change in the pay and methods of administration" of existing labor laws.

The group endorsed federal regulation of wages, hours and child labor, saying the states should supplement these minimum standards in line with local conditions.

Staff Sgt. Franklin J. Gerber of Alliance, serving with the 83rd division in France, was killed July 10. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gerber, R. D. 3, Alliance, and the fiancé of Evelyn Berger of Salem.

'Prankster' Who Burned Alliance Boy Is Fined

ALLIANCE, Aug. 4.—Municipal Judge Harry E. Moreland showed today he did not regard as humorous the prank of throwing cigarette lighter fluid on a person's clothing and then igniting it.

He imposed a fine of $25 and costs upon Robert F. Kimes, 18, charged with assault. The charge was preferred on behalf of Edwin Gobeli, 18, reported by Police Chief H. L. Stark as painfully burned when fluid was tossed on to his shirt. Two other boys were also reported involved.

Section Hand Killed, Three Hurt In Mishap

GREENFIELD, Aug. 4.—Bert Easter, 63, of Samantha, was killed and several other members of a Baltimore & Ohio railroad section crew were injured as the trailer on which they were riding jumped the tracks yesterday on a curve at Leesburg, nine miles west of here.

The injured included Howard Washburn, Barion Neff and Everett Reese of Leesburg.

The trailer was being pulled by a motor car bearing other crew members.

Reading, Pa., Transit Workers Out On Strike

READING, Pa., Aug. 4.—A work stoppage of Reading Street Railway Co. workers in protest over union suspension of 13 members of the Amalgamated Association of Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees (A.F.L.) cut the city's transportation facilities to 75 per cent today.

The figure was expected to drop still lower when night shifts, which operated during the morning rush hours, completed their runs.

There are over 26,000 miles of railways in France.

deadline for resumption of service under an order from President Roosevelt seizing the lines in the name of the government.

The stoppage began in protest against the transportation company's upgrading of Negroes to operating jobs.

Five truckloads of strikers stopped a Philadelphia Transportation Co., emergency repair wagon in a residential street and warned the crew to answer no calls.

After seven trains had pulled out of the 69th st. elevated terminal, a band of strikers appeared on the platform and attempted to dissuade other crews from making their runs. Only one crew walked out again.

14 Persons Hospitalized

Eleven windows were smashed during the night in a flareup of race disorder which already had sent 14 persons to hospitals.

At 8:30 a. m. heavy details of police were dispatched to the Hunting Park station of the Broad street subway on a report of a "bad disturbance" there.

Policemen reported the station was "all quiet" when they arrived, but said they were told strikers had been attempting to dissuade residents from boarding the occasional trains.

Meanwhile hundreds of thousands of Philadelphians again hitch-hiked, walked or used makeshift transportation provided by employees, to get to their jobs.

The army gave no immediate indication of what action it would take if complete service was not restored.

A mass meeting of many of the Philadelphia Transportation Co.'s 5,000 employees voted last night to continue the blackout on the ground that the racial issue which prompted the work stoppage three days ago had not been settled by government seizure.

The men walked out originally in protest to the upgrading of eight Negroes to jobs as motormen.

Palestine Water Supply Better As Leak Is Found

EAST PALESTINE, Aug. 4.—The water supply here — dangerously low yesterday as the reservoir was unexplainably drained — has shown satisfactory recovery today, although rains on lawn sprinkling and unnecessary use are still in effect.

A leak, beneath E. North ave. was found last night in a six-inch line, but officials said it would not be sufficient to drain the 600,000 gallons which were lost in the two-day period.

The supply is building up again today, but the sprinkling ban is being maintained until a good reserve can be accumulated.

AKRON, Aug. 4.—The "come-back" performance of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus opens today—nearly a month after flames snuffed out 166 lives July 6 when the show's "big top" burned at Hartford, Conn.

Circus employees regard today's opener as a test of whether the circus can come back in outdoor performances without a tent, and are confident the show in Akron's Rubber bowl will be successful.

FILM STAR NAMED IN JUVENILE PROBE

(By Associated Press)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 4.—St. Joseph County Prosecutor Arthur F. Scherr said today affidavits had been filed charging four persons, including Jackie Cooper, 22, of Beverly Hills, Calif., whom he identified as a star in a recent movie called "Where Are Your Children," with contributing to and encouraging the delinquency of minors.

Cooper has been stationed at the University of Notre Dame here as a Navy V-12 student since last November.

Also charged in the affidavits, which Scherr said grew out of a police investigation of a party at the LaSalle hotel here the night of July 22, were Pauline Frederic, 19, of South Bend; George Bender, a V-12 student at Notre Dame, and Ole Lowery, a hotel waiter.

Prosecutor Scherr said Cooper was charged specifically with contributing to the delinquency of a 15-year-old South Bend girl by furnishing her intoxicants and by encouraging her to remain away from home overnight in a room engaged by him at the hotel.

Two affidavits were filed against Miss Frederic, who Scherr said was identified as Cooper's companion at the party. She was charged with contributing to the delinquency of the 15-year-old girl and another girl 16 years old, both of whom, Scherr said, she invited to the party.

Bender, Scherr stated, was charged with contributing to the 15-year-old girl's delinquency through immoral relations with her, while Lowery was charged with contribution by serving intoxicants.

The affidavits were signed by Levi Nulf of the police department, who aided in a two-week police investigation, Scherr said.

DROUTH MAKES

report of Ross County Agent Fred Keeler, who said damage to the corn crop is already $1,000,000 and to soybeans $500,000 in his county.

Rain Badly Needed

All agriculture authorities agreed that if rains do not fall soon losses will be much higher.

Richland County Agent George B. Ganyard said damage to corn in his vicinity was "serious," and that soybeans looked "bad." Tomatoes, he added, are in danger "unless rain falls next week."

Knox county agent, George Everhart said some upland corn was already lost, bottom-land corn needed rain badly, and soybean and garden damage was "heavy."

Payette County Agent W. W. Montgomery said the sweet corn yield from several thousand acres would be "about 25 per cent of the normal crop."

Stark county yields were reported far below normal, with potatoes, oats, garden crops and fruits the chief drouth sufferers.

C. D. McGrew, Trumbull county agent, said corn had been damaged 20 per cent since July 1, but was still better than a year ago. Soybean damage in a like period is 15 per cent, with the crop 25 per cent above a year ago. Gardens, he said, are ahead of last year's but damaged 30 per cent since July 1.

Van Wert county also reported crops normal, but in danger if rain does not come soon. Gardens are already slightly damaged, but all crops are 50 per cent better than a year ago, which was too wet in that section.

Record Temperatures Yesterday

The Ohio sugar beet crop, now in the state of development where rain is needed, was reported suffering in Hancock and surrounding counties.

Except for local thundershowers, there was no promise of rainfall anywhere in the state today, following yesterday's record heat of 97 in Cleveland and Youngstown, and a 96 which tied a 47-year record in Columbus.

Tiffin went into its 41st day without rain, and many other sections

U. S. UNITS

It was estimated the total Nazi casualties since the invasion totaled 200,000 men—half the enemy's initial force.

Bedraggled German units which once hemmed in the Allies along a 100-mile expanse in Normandy were retreating in confusion and abandoning their equipment virtually everywhere except along a short stretch between Vire and Caen. The Allied offensive had developed into a sudden thrust to the whole 40,000-square-mile Seine-Loire quadrangle of northwest France.

Forced with the growing danger of entrapment against the Orne river, the Germans near the middle of their still organized line in Normandy lashed out in a series of tank-supported counter-attacks and forced the British to fall back more than 2,000 yards, a front dispatch said.

This blow staved off an immediate British threat to Amun-sur-Odon. Bolstered by reinforcements from east of the Orne river, the Germans drove the British from the villages of St. Georges D'Aunay, La Lande and LeManoir, immediately west of Amun.

At the eastern end of the Allied line, in the area below Caen, the Germans were moving their armor westward toward the Vire area, a front dispatch said.

In improving weather Allied air power is having a field day with the retreating German Seventh army, flailing its armor with dread shells and bombing its lines of withdrawal.

Potters Will Iron Out Vacation Issue Before Labor Board

To clarify the time element in the recent War Labor board directive regarding vacation with pay for pottery workers, a special hearing will be held Monday afternoon in Cleveland before the Regional War Labor board, it was decided yesterday at a joint meeting of employers and union officials in East Liverpool.

Still undecided as to just what the provisions of the WLB directive mean, both union and employer representatives are slated to appear in Cleveland to hear the WLB's interpretation of a clause in question. The clause disputed by both sides leaves the actual date for beginning the vacation with pay arrangement in the air, reports from the meeting yesterday say.

As the directive reads on this particular subject, both groups have their own opinions. Employers believe just one week's vacation or pay is due employees under the ruling and union officials think two weeks should be forthcoming.

The particular clause in question reads, "During the war emergency, when the granting of vacation periods would impair the company's production operation, employees may receive pay in lieu of time off at the discretion of the employer. The vacations directed herein shall be made effective for the year 1943." The date for the biennial wage conference of pottery owners and union officials was set for Sept. 12 and will be held in Cleveland, it was announced. At that time the two groups will draw up the wage agreement to go into effect Oct. 1.

Radio Programs

Looking to the day when television networks could be commonplace, plans for further experiments to that end are being announced almost constantly. Heretofore undeveloped ultra-ultra short waves, measured in several thousand megacycles, would be used.

The newest step came in the joint application of General Electric of Schenectady and International Business Machines of Washington for licenses to operate an experimental radio relay circuit linking Schenectady, New York and Washington. The system would employ automatic relay transmitters installed atop steel masts 30 miles apart, with terminal stations in large cities.

HOUSTON, Tex.—R. G. Shequist of Houston was so convincing in his claim that he "really did come to a stop" at a stop sign that Traffic Court Judge Walter Chalmers scratched his head and turned to the arresting officer quizzically.

Patrician M. F. Davidson first grinned, then blushed, and blurted:

"It's possible, your honor. There were lots of cars. Even a policeman makes a mistake once in his life."

His reward was hearty handshakes from the alleged offender. Judge: "Case dismissed."

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN
Services for Nora—on April 15—were private. Only the family and a few friends were present—Mr. Queen, Judge and Clarice Martin, Dr. Willoughby, and some of John F.'s people from the bank. Frank Lloyd was seen about the edge of the group, straining for a glimpse of the lovely profile in the copper casket. He looked as if he had not taken his clothes off for a week, or slept during that time. When Hermy's eye rested on him, he shrank and disappeared. There were perhaps twenty mourners in all.

Hermy was heroic. She sat up straight, eyes steady and she didn't cry. Pat said it was because she was all cried out. Lola had to take John F. by the hand.

Looking back on it, Ellery saw the finer points of Jim Haight's psychology. But that was after the event. Beforehand it was impossible to tell, because Jim acted his part perfectly. He fooled them all, including the author-detective.

Jim came to the cemetery between two detectives, seemingly ignoring them, looking neither to right nor to left, on the path under the aged trees up to the top of the hill where the newly-turned earth gaped.

Most of Wrightville watched from a decent distance. The Wrights stood about the grave in a mournful group, Lola and Pat pressing close to Hermione and their father. Close to them were Ellery Queen, Judge Eli Martin and Clarice, Doc Willoughby and some others, and, of course, Dr. Doolittle.

When Jim was brought up, a tiny murmur arose among the on-lookers. Hermy's lips were seen to move, and Jim went over to her and kissed her. He paid no attention to anyone else; after that he just stood there at the grave, a thin figure of loneliness.

Soon the interment service was over, and they were shuffling down the walk, Hermy straining backward to catch a last glimpse of the casket. The crowd at the gate parted silently.

Then Jim Haight did it. One moment he was trudging along between the detectives, a dead man staring at the ground; the next he came alive. He tripped one of his guards. The man fell backward. Jim struck the second guard on the jaw, so that the man fell on his brother officer and they thrashed about like wrestlers, trying to regain their feet.

In those few seconds Jim was gone, running through the crowd like a bull, bowling people over, dodging and twisting. Ellery shouted at him, but Jim ran on.

The detectives were on their feet now, running too, revolvers out uselessly. To fire might mean hitting innocent people.

And then Ellery saw that Jim's madness was not so mad at all. For a quarter way down the hill, past all the parked vehicles, stood a single large car, its nose pointed away from the cemetery. No one was in it, but the motor had been kept running. Ellery knew, for Jim leaped in and the car shot forward at once.

By the time the two detectives reached a clear space, and fired down the hill, the limousine was a toy in the distance, careening crazily at a great speed.

After another few moments, the detectives reached their own car and took up the chase, one driving the other firing. But Jim was well out of range as the two cars disappeared.

The crowd shouted, and swept over the Wrights and their friends, and automobiles began flying down the hill in clouds of dust.

Hermy lay on the living-room settee, and Pat and Lola were applying cold compresses to her head while John F. turned the pages of one of his stamp albums with great deliberation, as if it were one of the most important things in the world. He sat in a corner by the window to catch the late afternoon light. Clarice Martin was holding Hermy's hand tightly in an ecstasy of remorse, crying over her defection during the trial and over Nora and over this last shocking blow.

At the fireplace Dr. Willoughby and Mr. Queen conversed in low tones. Then Judge Martin came in from outdoors. And with him was Carter Bradford.

Everything stopped, as if an enemy had walked into camp. But Carter ignored it. He was quite pale, but held himself erect; and he kept looking at Pat who had Martin was frankly frightened. She glanced quickly at her husband, but Eli shook his head and went over to the window to seat himself by John F.

"I don't want to intrude Mrs. Wright," said Carter stiffly. "But I had to tell you how badly I felt about—all this."

"Thank you, Carter," said Hermy. "Lola, stop babbling me! Carter, what about—" Hermy swallowed—"Jim?"

"Jim got away, Mrs. Wright." "I'm glad," cried Pat. "Oh, I'm so very glad!"

Carter glanced her way. "Don't say that, Patty. That sort of thing never winds up right. Nobody gets away. Jim would have been better advised to have stuck it out."

"So that you could hound him to his death, I suppose. All over again!" John F. left his stamp album where it was. He put his thin hand on Carter's arm. "It was nice of you to come here today, Cart. I'm sorry if I was ever harsh with you. How does it look?"

"Bad, Mr. Wright," Carter's lips tightened. "Naturally, the alarm is out. All highways are being watched. It's true he got away, but it's only a question of time before he's captured."

"Bradford," inquired Mr. Queen from the fireplace, "have you traced the getaway car?"

"Yes." "Looked like a put-up job to me," muttered Dr. Willoughby. "That car was in a mighty convenient place, and the motor was running!"

"Whose car is it?" queried Lola. "It was rented from Homer Findlay's garage in Low Village this morning."

"Rented?" exclaimed Clarice Martin. "By whom?"

Ellery murmured "Ah," in a tone of dark satisfaction, and nodded as if that were all he had wanted to know. But the others were surprised.

Lola tossed her head. "Good for her!" "Carter allowed me to talk to the woman myself," said Judge Eli Martin wearily. "She's smart. Insists she hired the car just to drive to the cemetery this morning."

"And that she left the motor running by mistake," added Carter Bradford dryly. "And was it a coincidence that she also turned the car about so that it pointed down the hill?" asked Mr. Queen.

"That's what I asked her," said Carter. "Oh, there's no question about her complicity, and we're holding her. But that doesn't get Jim Haight back, nor does it give us a case against this Roberts woman. We'll probably have to let her go."

"She visited Jim on Sunday," remarked Ellery reflectively. "Also yesterday. I'm convinced she arranged the escape with Jim then."

"What difference does it make?" Hermy sighed. "Escape—no escape—Jim won't ever escape." Then Hermy said a queer thing, considering how she had always claimed she felt about her son-in-law and his guilt. Hermy exclaimed, "Poor Jim!"

The news arrived at ten o'clock that same night. Carter Bradford came over again and this time he went directly to Pat Wright and took her hand. She was so astonished she forgot to snatch it away. Then he said, gently: "It's up to you and Lola now, Pat."

"What... on earth are you talking about?" asked Pat in a shrill tight voice. "Dakin's men have found the car Jim escaped in."

"Found it?" Ellery Queen rose from a dark corner and came over into the light. "If it's bad news, keep your voices down. Mrs. Wright's just gone to bed, and John F. doesn't look as if he could take any more today."

"Where was the car found?" "At the bottom of a ravine off Route 478A, up in the hills. About fifty miles from here."

"Lord!" breathed Pat, staring. "It had crashed through the highway rail," reported Carter. "Just past a hairpin turn. Dropped about two hundred feet."

Pat sat down in the love seat by the fireplace, looking up at Cart as if he were a judge about to pronounce doom. "Found in the car," Carter turned aside. "Dead." He turned back and looked humbly at Pat. "So that's the end of the case."

"Poor Jim!" whispered Pat. "I want to talk to you two," said Mr. Queen.

It was very late. Hermione had heard, and had gone to pieces. Strange that the funeral of her daughter should have found her strong, and the news of her son-in-law's death weak. John F. was in hardly better case; he had taken to trembling, and the doctor noticed it, and packed him off to bed in a guest room while Lola assisted with Hermy, and Pat helped her father up the stairs. Now it was over, and they were both asleep, and Lola had locked herself in, and Dr. Willoughby had gone home sagging.

"I want to talk to you two," said Mr. Queen. Carter was still there. He had been a bed of rock for Hermy this night. She had actually clung to him while she wept, and Mr. Queen thought this, too, was strange. And then he thought: No, this is the rock, the last rock, and Hermy clings. If she let's go, she drowns, they all drown. That is how she must feel.

WOULD DROP FOOD, ADMISSION TAXES

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4—State Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt recommended yesterday repeal of the sales tax on food and the state admissions tax so that they might be retained as local excises by financially-stricken communities.

He also advocated full distribution of cigarette dealers' license fees to local government, instead of allowing the state 50 per cent as is done now.

In a report to Gov. John W. Bricker on new policies he would like incorporated in Ohio's 1944-45 tax and fiscal program, Evatt estimated the proposed changes would result in an annual loss of revenue to the state of $7,500,000.

He asserted, however, there was no need for the state to preempt fields of revenue "simply because relatively few subdivisions need additional funds which they themselves could raise by the state vacating such fields." He added:

"There is no reason, therefore, why taxpayers in community 'A' should continue to pay amusement taxes and taxes on food if neither the state nor community 'A' needs any part of this revenue, simply because such taxes should be maintained in community 'B' which needs such revenue."

In this way, instead of traveling still farther along the road to centralization, local governments would be helped to stand on their own financial bottoms and swing away from the practice of coming to some higher level of government for a handout.

"I want to talk to you two," said Mr. Queen. It was very late. Hermione had heard, and had gone to pieces. Strange that the funeral of her daughter should have found her strong, and the news of her son-in-law's death weak. John F. was in hardly better case; he had taken to trembling, and the doctor noticed it, and packed him off to bed in a guest room while Lola assisted with Hermy, and Pat helped her father up the stairs. Longer Wearing Clothes Forecast for Postwar Era

(By United Press)

ST. LOUIS—After the war, the Monsanto Chemical Co. reports, your pants won't shine, your stockings won't run and clothes will last twice as long because of radical developments in the chemical treatment of fibers.

Moreover, the company says, chemically treated trousers will retain their crease, even in the rain and when taken out of a suitcase, and cottons and rayons will have increasingly fast colors and will resist heat, water and acid.

"These developments, according to the company, are based on new techniques in treating either the surface or the interior of the fabrics, without changing the feel or the texture."

In some cases, treatment involves the deposit of a sub-microscopic film of plastic. Runs in stockings are prevented by deposits of silica or sub-microscopic grains of sand which prevent the fibers from slipping out of position when they are knitted.

Paxsons, Demings Win Fourth Round Games

Schaeffer Hurls Two-Hit Fray To Beat News; Pump Team Wins 2-0 Over Sheens

Behind another top-notch pitching performance by Mutt Schaeffer, Paxsons scored eight runs on eight hits to down the News, 8-3, yesterday at Centennial park as Sheens were defeated, 2-0, by Demings in a tight ball game.

Pitching two hit ball, Schaeffer also batted out two safeties in three times at bat to help Paxsons to their first win of the season over the News in four tries.

Sheens played errorless ball behind Francis Lanney's four-hit game, which equaled Ken Brudery's showing. Both hurlers had the game under control most of the way, but Demings managed to grab two runs on their four hits while they held the Monks aggregation scoreless.

The News started in the third inning with a run after threatening in both the first and second after two men were out. Paxsons came back in the fourth to take the lead with three runs and collected three more in the fifth when Walt Brian drove a high, long triple far out to left field with the bases loaded. Paxsons got two more in the sixth and the News one in the fifth and one in the seventh.

Orry "Hoss" Wright worked the mound for the News for his fourth try and allowed the hard-hitting opposition eight hits. Schaeffer's game was nearly perfect as only a pop single over first and a bunt counted as good blows. Walks were issued frequently by both hurlers and on several occasions the innings ended within the bases loaded.

Demings tallied once in the third and again in the fourth for their runs as the game went most of the way air-tight.

Charlie Franks, leading Sheen batsman, had a big night at the plate, clouting two of the four Monk hits and playing a bang-up game at first. Franks is now hitting .375 and is approaching the league leadership.

Chicago Is Still "Jinx" Club To Slipping Indian Crew

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Cleveland's Indians were nursing pennant hopes a week ago but today their first division position was imperiled.
Yesterday's 3 to 2 and 5 to 1 defeats by their 1944 nemesis, the Chicago White Sox, dropped the Tribesmen eight and a half games behind the pace-setting St. Louis Browns. The Redskins hold fourth place by only half a game over Chicago and Detroit, who are dead-locked for fifth.

First Six Weeks

The double setback was the Tribe's first series loss in six weeks. The defeats were the 10th and 11th in 14 games with the team that Cleveland beat 15 times last year. Al Smith gave up only six hits in losing the first game, but his wild pitch allowed Chicago to score the tying run from third base in the eighth inning.
Allie Reynolds was the losing hurler in the nightcap, although he yielded only three hits in the seven innings he worked before retiring for a pinch-hitter.

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

By FRITZ HOWELL,
(Pinch-Hitting for Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Training will tell!
Out at Oxford, O., the V-12 unit at Miami university was playing a baseball game. Major John Robb, commander of the Marine detachment, veteran of Guadalcanal and former Hanover (Ind.) college athlete, was pitching.
Behind the plate was a Marine private. One of the major's slants went into the dirt, squirted away from the kid catcher, and a runner on first scooted to second. The catcher pulled off his mask, dived for the ball, but retrieved it too late to make a throw.
The catcher looked at the pitcher. After all, the latter was his commanding officer, and the kid couldn't forget it, even in the heat of baseball battle. The kid said:
"I'm sorry, dog-gone it . . . sir!"

JUST THE BERRIES
If we were a baseball player, and could pick our job, we'd take over for Joe Just, Cincinnati Red catcher. Roy Berres, Giant catcher, or Lena Blackburn, Philadelphia Athletic coach. Berres has been up only once in five games, while Blackburn gets $50 from the American league for sending each club a can of special dirt with which the umpires rub the baseballs before each game. What a life those guys lead—and that Berres was a holdout, yet.

WE ASKED YOU FIRST
No. 1.—What major league player gained the highest rank in the first World war?
No. 2.—What catcher leads the list in stolen bases for receivers? (Tip—it's not Lombardi.)
(Answers at end of column—but don't look now.)

TODAY'S JEST STAR
Kenney Jones, Peoria Journal-Transcript: "The circus is now playing the park—arks—and the clowns should feel right at home."

WE JUST LEARNED
The figure 56 is a magic one in sports—Joe DiMaggio hit in 56 consecutive games, Ben Hogan finished in the money in 56 straight golf tournaments, Greg Rice won 56 straight races, Walter Johnson pitched 56 shutout innings in a row, and the Pittsburgh Pirates failed to score in 56 straight innings. (Heinz beat 'em all by one.)

THE BASEBALL ANSWERS
No. 1.—Alfred Von Kollnitz, Chicago White Sox, major.
No. 2.—Roger Bresnahan, New York Giants, 34 in 1903.

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO—Rookie Don Johnson, the Chicago Cubs' smooth-working second baseman, almost gave up trying to become a chip off the ol' block.
After spending 10 years prying around in the minors—playing with Seattle, Sacramento, San Francisco and Hollywood in the Pacific Coast league; Tulsa in the Texas league, and Milwaukee of the American Association—Don can be fully recognized as following his father's footsteps.
Dad With White Sox
When Don was just a tyke he had quite an edge on his neighborhood pals. His dad, Ernie, was a shortstop for the Chicago White Sox from 1920 through 1922 and was with the New York Yankees from 1923 through 1925. Don's dad later took a whirl at managing Portland and Seattle. Since 1934 been a scout for the Boston Red Sox.
"Sure, dad helped me a lot and was my inspiration," says Don. "But he always believed I should make my own breaks, and that was what I had to do. He certainly didn't force baseball on me—he wanted me to pick my own profession."
He would grab a bat and show me how to hold it. He would put on a glove and toes, hot ones at me. But while he was managing clubs he never let me go into the dressing rooms or let me do much running around on the field.
"About the most I got to do was sit up in the stands and watch the games. Mother and I used to travel some with him when he was with the White Sox and Yankees and it was a thrill to watch him play."
Played At Oregon State
Don played baseball for Santa Ana, Calif., junior college and then for Oregon State. He took a course in commercial business, but after two years decided to quit school and travel around the world.
"Back in those times, baseball clubs were filled up and it looked like an impossibility to break into pro ball," he recalls. "I was overwhelmed with an urge to sail the seas and I spent a lot of time down on the Seattle docks trying to land a job as cabin boy on steamers. But I failed and finally made my mind to follow dad's profession."

In 1933 Don dropped anchor with the Seattle Rainiers and rode the bench. The next year he laid off baseball because of a sore arm. In 1935 he went to Sacramento, and then in 1936 shifted to San Francisco. In the third week of the season with San Francisco he broke his leg sliding into second base.
Brought Up By Grimm
"I had just been optioned to the Yanks when the accident happened," he says. "Of course, the option was cancelled. That was the nearest I ever came to having a chance in the big leagues until Charlie Grimm brought me to Milwaukee from Tulsa last year. I hit .283 for the Brewers and considered Grimm almost as much of an inspiration as my dad."
Grimm recognized Johnson's talent and funneled him to the Cubs late last fall. When the jolly Dutchman became the Cubs' field manager in May, 32-year-old Johnson was assured the regular second base assignment.
"Don is one of the most relaxed players I've seen—that's just how smooth he is in the infield," appraises Grimm. "He has a world of confidence and is developing into a splendid player. It's natural that he also has a fine ball playing spirit and temperament."

In a state of complete happiness playing for Grimm, Johnson figured in 44 double plays in his first 74 games for the Cubs this season, was hitting near the .290 mark and had made such a fine start in the big leagues that he was named as a member of the National League All-Star squad.
Steel working and hardening in an advanced stage was common 3,000 years ago in Greece.

Perfect Arm Scores
Win Over Jap Tanks
OKLAHOMA CITY—Staff Sgt. Jack Pepper of Oklahoma City, Marine corps combat correspondent tells how an Oklahoma sergeant used baseball pitching form to defeat a Japanese tank.

The sergeant, Dean T. Squires of Taloga, Okla., was fighting on Salpan when a Jap tank came toward him. Having only a rifle, Squires ran. The tank chased him. As Squires passed an abandoned fox hole he saw a demolition kit in it. He grabbed it. The tank shot past him. The sergeant pitched the demolition charge at the rear of the tank and his aim was true.
The tank was wrecked.

Mass Of Old Timer Stars To Be Around To Help In Honoring "Mr. Baseball"

BY RAY PETERSON
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—"The first 50 years were the easiest," smiled Connie Mack as he looked back today over his years as a major league manager while last minute preparations for his golden jubilee celebration at Shibe park tonight were rushed to completion.
Baseball's great of today and yesterday—Honus Wagner, Tris Speaker, George Sisler, Mickey Cochrane, Bill Dickey, Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth and a score of others—will be on hand to honor the Grand Old Man of Baseball.
Started With Pittsburgh
In the 50 years since "Mr. Baseball" began his managerial career with the Pittsburgh Nationals Aug. 4, 1894, Cornelius McGillicuddy as he prefers to be called—has lost some of his spryness but none of his fervor for the nation's No. 1 sport.
Nearing 82, the tall, erect, silver-haired owner and manager of the Athletics said he looks forward to his club before he quits baseball.
Highlighting tonight's celebration which will precede the regular A's-Yankees game will be presentation of Mack's all-star players. As each name is called out, Mack will greet him at home plate.

Flashes Of Life

(By Associated Press)
MANSFIELD—Mis-printed cards placed in downtown windows by the United States Employment service caused a bit of hilarity among townspeople who read: "The war news are good—keep them good."

HAMILTON—Robert Carroll is an unhappy dog owner with this complaint:
His dog slept soundly on the porch while a burglar forced a window and took $7, but barked loud and long when Detective William Blair and Patrolman Robert Ferdman arrived to investigate.

TOLEDO—A menu in a local hotel luncheonroom contained good news for the "Wimpy clan." A note explained:
"We are pleased to advise that because of the recent changes in rationing requirements, we have been able to increase the size of our hamburgers. The same fine quality of meat will be used and the price will be the same as heretofore."

DAYTON—It wasn't a very big fire—just the roof and corner of a house in North Dayton were burned, but it happened in the night, and with the smoke and everything, it seemed a major catastrophe to the harried owner.

In his nightshirt—coughing and wheezing and fanning the smoke—he seized a big china vase in the hall, rushed to an upstairs bedroom window and threw it out with a mighty heave. Then he grabbed his wife's fur coat, raced through the smoke, held it tightly and carefully as he ran down the stairs, through the living room and far into the yard, where he laid it carefully on the grass.
Yes sir, presence of mind means a lot.

JULY DROUTH HITS CORN, OATS CROPS

With the temperature in the 90's for 11 days and a 55 per cent sunshine, July went on the records as one of the hot months. Weather Observer L. H. Copeland of Millport reveals in his monthly report. The month had a maximum of 98 and a minimum of 43 degrees and precipitation was only 3.12 inches, compared with a 51-year normal of 4.46 degrees. There were 15 clear and 16 partly cloudy days, with thunderstorms on July 12 and 20.

The year is now ahead 25.4 degrees in temperature and short 3.58 inches in precipitation.

With both June and July below normal in rainfall and above normal in temperature, a severe drouth has affected all crops. Oats crop is light and corn prospects are poor. Early potatoes are reported as a failure. However, wheat was a good crop, averaging 25 to 40 bushels per acre.

Recent rains have improved all vegetation but more rain is needed as pastures are short.

Normal temperature for July is an average of 70.5 degrees. The warmest on record was 74.2 in 1934.

MOST OF BRITANNY PENINSULA IS CUT OFF

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

THE FAST-MOVING conquest of Brittany seems to be developing an astonishing race to determine whether the speeding American armored columns can overrun the great peninsula with its magnificent ports before the weakened Germans can bring up reinforcements.

Thus far the Yanks haven't encountered any organized Nazi front, and resistance has been comparatively light. This has been due in considerable degree to the fact that the Hitlerites have had to pull many troops out of Brittany to defend their tottering Normandy base.

Of course we don't know how strongly the ports of Brest, St. Nazaire and Lorient—our chief objectives—may be garrisoned, however, we get some measure of enemy weakness in our walk-over at the Breton capital of Rennes. This is a pivotal rail and highway center and the Nazis would defend it to the best of their ability.

If the Germans aren't already holding the ports strongly, their prospects are slim. By capturing Rennes the Americans have severed the main railroad into the peninsula and one column is thrusting swiftly across the base of the big triangle towards St. Nazaire while another heads for Brest at the apex.

Although the southern two-thirds of the base is still open, the Allied air armada is rendering communications devilishly precarious. The sky navy is a major factor in this battle of lightning movement which may teach Adolf something about the blitz warfare he initiated in '39 with so much bluster and bombast.

The Breton peninsula is a pearl of great price. Not only will its fine ports greatly increase our capacity to pour troops and material into France—but this is of great importance—Hitler's U-boats have been using Brest, Lorient and St. Nazaire as prime bases from which to raid Allied shipping.

BERLIN NOW ADMITS that Marshal Rommel, field commander on the invasion front, suffered concussion of the brain, although he is said to be doing well. One wonders how much the Nazis have felt the loss of his undoubted skill. They likely wish now he could have remained on the job, to settle the argument with his old antagonist, Montgomery.

For my money Monty is the better man by a long way. I followed the tracks of the Montgomery-Bommel duel from El Alamein to Benning, close to 600 miles, and anyone who saw the pattern in the sands of the desert couldn't doubt who was top man.

Allied progress in the battle of France is indeed gratifying. As Montgomery says, "we are hitting the Hun a good crack." So are the Red armies, and the Allies in Italy. Still, we shouldn't let this good fortune blind us to the fact that this is the moment when we are expending our greatest volume of material on the flaming fronts. We mustn't slacken the essential production for a minute or we shall lose our chance for an early knock-out. While we may have a good supply of some types of equipment, our fighting men are expending other material in such vast quantities that we can't keep up with it unless we go all out all the time.

ARMY TRANSIT MOVES IMPEDED BY STRIKERS

Effort to End Philadelphia Tie-Up Only Partially Successful

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—An immediate investigation of the Philadelphia Transit System strike to determine whether there has been any violation of federal law was ordered today by Attorney General Biddle.

(By Associated Press)
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—Bands of strikers threatened violence today to operators attempting to restore service on Philadelphia's paralyzed transportation system and the Army, which seized the lines last night, announced that persons with apparent enemy sympathies had prevented resumption of service.

"Protection will be provided on the trolleys, buses, subways and elevated lines," Maj. Gen. Philip Hayes, commanding general of the Third Service command, said after only a few subway and elevated trains and the trolleys on one route had made runs.

Hayes took control on orders of President Roosevelt last night after the stoppage had stranded hundreds of thousands, curtailed vital war production and given rise to race violence.

Even as the Army took over, new clashes between whites and Negroes—with one shooting—were reported.

Gen. Hayes said would-be workers were kept from work "by threats made by persons who are apparently more interested in aiding the Axis than in seeing to it that essential transportation is provided for Philadelphia's war workers."

Promises Legal Penalties
"Delay in restoring full operation is measured in the blood of American soldiers overseas," he said. "Those who obstruct our operation have that blood on their hands."

He promised full legal penalties for anyone who interferes with service and said "it is obvious that the overwhelming majority of transit employees are conscious of the supreme obligation they have to our fighting men."

Only 12 elevated trains, seven subway trains and the trolleys on one route had operated up to 8 a. m., three hours after the Army's takeover.

SALEM PLAYERS CLUB OPENS NEW SEASON TUESDAY

Next Tuesday will mark the opening of a new year of activity for the Salem Players club when the initial meeting of its second season is held at the clubrooms.

Chief feature of the meeting, called for 8 p. m., will be the announcement by the play reading committee of the entire schedule of plays to be given during the coming season. According to present plans, four major plays will be presented, together with a special production during the Christmas period.

Selection of all plays in advance will permit the club to make more complete plans and arrangements for each presentation and will give Salem playgoers a better idea of what is to be offered in the way of stage entertainment. Tentative dates also will be announced, and directors may be chosen.

Another feature of the Tuesday meeting will be the passage of new by-laws and articles of incorporation of the organization, inasmuch as final arrangements have been completed for incorporating the club as a non-profit group.

A final report on the club's first year shows that more than $1,400 was spent in the presentation of four plays and in carrying on other theatrical activities.

Tuesday's meeting will be open to all persons who may be interested in either joining the club or assisting in any way in the production of plays this year.

REDS SHATTER VISTULA LINE

Only 91 Miles from German Silesia After Making Breakthrough

(By Associated Press)
MOSCOW, Aug. 4.—Russian hosts which smashed the German Vistula river line advanced swiftly today to within 91 miles of German Silesia while other army groups in the north shelled towns and villages inside West Prussia, both positions three miles from the frontier.

Another triumph in the Carpathians carried the Red Army within five miles of Czechoslovakia after chasing the Germans from Jabonkow, a short distance from the crest of Ussak pass, through which Russia invaded Hungary in the first World War.

Russian forces moved within 58 miles of Krakow, fifth city of Old Poland, over difficult hill country. In this area west of the Vistula, some 110 miles below beleaguered Warsaw, the Russians were within 30 miles of Tarnow and 28 of Kielce (Pop. 58,200), last large Nazi bastion before Krakow.

Official sources were silent on the siege of Warsaw, where Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's army group was pulled up just east of the Polish capital. In the Baltic states, Russian tanks were patrolling the shores of the Gulf of Riga 25 miles west of Riga and Pravda said they were striking both east toward that capital of 393,000 and also west toward Liepaja, Latvia's second city and a west coast seaport.

All along the 1,000-mile front from the Baltic to the Carpathians, the Germans were reported rolling up reserves, particularly in the Warsaw and Vistula breach area. Concentrations of the German air force appeared in a desperate attempt to check Russian lunges.

One Injured When Plane Comes Down

LISBON, Aug. 4.—The pilot and two passengers in a private plane which crashed on a farm near Salineville yesterday enroute to Holland, Mich., escaped serious injury.

The plane owned by an Indiana Rubber Co. was piloted by D. A. Likens of Garrett, Ind., who crashed landed near the community of Prosperity after he attempted to switch to his auxiliary gas tank and he found the fuel line clogged. The plane was flying at about 2,000 feet. Clipping off tree tops at it landed, the ship came to rest about 12 feet from the top of a 40-foot deep gravel pit. Undercarriage and a wing were damaged. One of the passengers who received a lacerated nose was treated at a Lisbon doctor's office before proceeding by train to Holland.

Lausche Is Defended In Water Issue By Kirwin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland, criticized by Rep. Earl R. Lewis (R-Ohio) for a water shortage in Cleveland, today had a champion in Rep. Michael J. Kirwin (D-Ohio).

Kirwin, answering assertions by Lewis that Lausche was responsible for the city's problem, said the system was installed before Lausche took office.

Drouth Makes Drastic Cut In Farm, Garden Production

Although wheat, hay and oats crops escaped serious damage by being harvested before the severe drouth, corn and potatoes in this region will suffer a 25 to 50 per cent loss, according to Floyd Lower, Columbiana county agricultural agent.

The late sweet corn will be negligible, while production of gardens and vegetables, which are suffering severe damage, will drop nearly 50 per cent of the hoped-for goal.

Pastures are completely burned out, producing a shortage to acule that farmers are already feeding hay to their stock. Winter feed stocks may run far short of the necessary amount due to the early use.

Early Harvest Beneficial

This year's wheat crop was fairly large and the hay crop was normal. The oats yield was slightly blighted by the earlier period of drouth, but wheat and hay were harvested, the agent pointed out, before the situation became serious.

Farmers are already hauling water for farm use and a number of growers have turned to irrigation to ease the moisture lack. One farmer who started irrigating early in the season has kept his crops and even his small peach orchard from suffering any damage.

A state survey shows that throughout the harvest of corn and soybeans will fall millions of bushels below the 1943 yield and garden production is down 50 per cent.

Reports from county agricultural agents and Agricultural Adjustment Administration representatives in 23 key districts indicate current drouth conditions have heavily damaged corn, and that a crop of 25 to 75 per cent less than last year's bumper crop is expected, despite heavier spring planting.

From 25 to 30 per cent less soybeans are expected, depending on rainfall.

While no effort was made to determine grass crop losses, potato yields, or grains other than corn and soybeans, scattered reports indicate all have suffered.

Some idea of the damage wrought to date may be gathered from the turn to DROUTH MAKES, Page 4

Large Water Basin Program Is Backed By Manufacturers

Manufacturers of Salem urged construction of a three million gallon storage basin southwest of the city at the earliest possible moment, when they discussed the city water situation with city officials last night.

City Engineer P. S. Berekhoff explained that a basin of that capacity would provide for the water needs of Salem for several years. "An entire capacity would not be used at first, however, as no new source of supply has been developed. The basin will make it possible for the waterworks department to meet demand loads of the manufacturing plants at once, and any sudden load would not jeopardize the reserve needed for fighting fires. That is what the manufacturers are seeking, as demand loads usually cannot be anticipated, and the desire is to have sufficient water for sudden demands."

City officials were guests of the Manufacturers association at dinner last night in the Lape hotel.

Mayor R. R. Johnson, Service Director F. K. Wilson, C. F. Zimmerman, president of the council, and Arch Wentz, chairman of council's water committee, assured the manufacturers their plans for the large basin would be pushed rapidly. The estimated cost is $100,000.

HOLD 2 SOLDIERS IN THEFT OF CAR

Recovery of a car, stolen from Fred D. Capel, 1932 N. Ellsworth ave., when it was parked on E. State st. Wednesday morning, was reported today to police officials here by state police at Uniontown, Pa.

Two soldiers, both paratroopers from Fort Benning, Ga., are being held under $1,500 bond each by authorities here. They were arrested yesterday in Uniontown for possessing a stolen vehicle and are in jail in default of bond.

They gave their names as Peter Cardine of Cardale, Pa., and Merle Robert Carothers of Beaver Falls, Pa.

The report confirms the belief of local police that the automobile was stolen by soldiers hitch-hiking through Salem.

State, Federal Breach Produced Costly Misunderstandings, Report

By JACK BELL
ST. LOUIS, Aug. 4.—The 26 Republican governors, asserting they had achieved "unity of thought" with Presidential Candidate Thomas E. Dewey, charged today that the asserted failure of President Roosevelt to exchange views with state executives had produced "costly misunderstandings" in the past.

Summing up two days of conferences on what Dewey has called "areas of friction" between the states and the federal government, the GOP governors asserted it was their intention to work closely with Dewey if he becomes president.

Calling for post-war simplification and reduction of taxes, the governors' conference said in other conclusions that the state and national governments must create "clear-cut labor and industrial policies," must develop coordinated social welfare services and should work together in the use and control of war resources.

In their general conclusions the governors charged there had been "a constant grasping for power on the part of the federal government." They said that only through cooperation and "sympathetic understanding" could this nation's system of government be made to work.

Common Solution of Problems

"This can best be accomplished when all parts of the country are represented in the councils of the federal government," the report said, "and when by personal contact the president of the United States and the governors of the states achieve that unity of national purpose which transcends partisanship and strives unselfishly for the solution of their common problems."

For the past 10 years, entire regions of our country have been without representation in the cabinet or administrative agencies of the federal government. During that period the governors of the states have never once been invited to exchange views with the President of the United States. Both of

Collection of waste paper—America's No. 1 war material shortage at the present time—will be conducted by the Salem Auxiliary Fire department, a Civilian Defense organization, on Aug. 13 and 20, it was decided at the monthly meeting last night.

According to present plans, the town will be covered in the two Sunday collections. The sections to be canvassed each day has not been determined, but will be announced early next week.

With paper now listed as the most pressing war shortage in the country, Salem citizens are being urged by the firemen's auxiliary to gather all the waste paper they can locate, bundle or stack it as neatly as possible, and place it, along with properly prepared tin cans and other scrap metal, either on their front porches or in a convenient place outside their homes.

City Salvage Chairman Arthur V. Smith emphasized the importance of placing the valuable materials in a place safe from rain, in case the weather should be bad on either of the two Sundays.

[BULLETIN]
SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 4.—The Americans were believed tonight to have swept close to St. Nazaire, virtually completing the cut-off of the Breton peninsula.

Advanced forces were believed well beyond any points thus far officially disclosed.

(By Associated Press.)
SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 4.—United States armor and infantry, spreading in a widening and lengthening tide over Brittany, reached within 43 miles of the two big ports of Nantes and St. Nazaire on the Loire today and cut off most of the peninsula.

While bursting through country 20 miles south of Rennes, the American forces also spread 27 miles west of that rail and highway hub in the center of Brittany, coming within 108 miles of Brest.

Yet other forces advanced in rapid strides to within two miles of Evran, seven miles south of captured Dinan on the north side of Brittany, and jumped off to attack the German-held north coast city of St. Malo which had been by-passed in the strike to Dinan.

Fighting raged in Rennes along streets leading to the heart of the town, where an encircled but fanatic enemy garrison was holding out.

The Americans struck due south close to Bain-De-Bretagne, 17 miles south of Rennes and 43 miles from Nantes, a port city of 195,000 population up the Loire river.

EMPLOYMENT LIMITS PLACED BY BYRNES

They also were within five miles of Pipriac, 20 miles southwest of Rennes and 43 miles from St. Nazaire, the boat base and U. S. troop port in the first World War.

Although there still was fighting at Rennes, field dispatches said the position of the German garrison there was hopeless.

Secretary Simson in Washington yesterday announced the capture of Rennes and subsequent dispatches from correspondents at Supreme headquarters also told of the seizure of the city. These dispatches were based on the War department announcement and front-line reports that American troops had pushed beyond the communications center. Supreme headquarters itself did not announce capture of the city.

In the westward push past Rennes, the Americans were reported approaching Mauron, 27 miles directly west, and within two miles of St. Meen Le Bretagne, nine miles to the north.

Breons, nine miles northwest of St. Meen and 14 miles southwest of Dinan, also was reached in the westward drive.

Enemy Disorganized

St. Meen Le Bretagne is on the main road running almost down the center of the peninsula from Rennes to Brest. Both St. Meen and Mauron are about 108 miles from the big French naval base at the tip of Brittany.

Berlin, in its high command communique, said American troops were "engaging German base garrisons" after a breakthrough into Brittany, and reports from the front continued to stress that only this type of enemy troops was being met—troops which could not be expected to put up as strong resistance as front line outfits.

In speaking to Lechae, five miles from Pipriac, the Americans were just 18 miles outside Redon, chief communications center of southern Brittany.

The Americans were 41 miles from Vannes, port on the south side of the peninsula, and 70 from Lorient, an important port and U-boat base to the west.

As American spearheads race on toward these great ports the German front of organized resistance in northwestern France shrank to a mere 35 miles from Vire to Caen.

THE GENERALS

Nomination of Lieut. Gen. Joseph Warren Stilwell, U. S. commander in Burma, to be a full general will create a fresh flurry of interest in the title. It is not an easy one to rationalize.

As belittles the greatest war in history, the United States has more full generals than ever before—Marshall, Eisenhower, Arnold, MacArthur, and now, Stilwell. During World War I, its full generalships were held by Tasker H. Bliss and John J. Pershing. Pershing's generalship was made permanent in 1919.

As a general practice—the pun is intentional—generalships are bestowed temporarily. Thus, the man who serves as chief of staff is made a full general. That is the status at present of Gen. Marshall. It was the status of MacArthur when he was chief of staff from 1930 to 1935. He was recalled to active duty after his retirement as a major general, made a temporary lieutenant general and then a temporary full general. His permanent rank, like that of Stilwell, is major general.

Fortunately, there are few enough four star generals to be remembered without much trouble. George Washington does not head the list; there is no record that he ever was given the title of general, though he held the now overworked title of commander-in-chief in the Continental army from 1775 to 1783.

The list begins with Ulysses T. Grant and continues with William T. Sherman and Philip H. Sheridan. So much for the Civil war. It jumps then to John J. Pershing—and that is the big four. Aside from the generals now active—Marshall, MacArthur, Eisenhower and Arnold—the only others are those, including MacArthur, who held the post of chief of staff between the two wars. They are: Tasker H. Bliss, Peyton C. Marshall, Charles F. Summerall and Malin Craig. Gen. Stilwell is being nominated for distinguished company, but any general who can keep fighting in Asia without supplies or anything else to speak of needs all the encouragement he can get.

NECESSITY, NOT SYMPATHY

The maturity of American opinion about international affairs may be hastened by the necessity which has forced Turkey at long last to break with Germany and seems to be forcing Finland, at the northern extremity of Hitler's line of influence in eastern Europe, toward the same decision.

The same necessity has kept the Franco regime in Spain from yielding to its native inclination and has had similar effect in the Middle East and Sweden and Ireland. The Allies, themselves, are not bound together by sympathies, but by common necessities. The persistent attempt to justify their collaboration on a basis of something else—to find common ideological grounds for a military coalition among divergent peoples—has been the source of more misunderstanding and confusion than any single aspect of Allied activity.

The Turks are on our side not because they love us, but because Germany is being beaten. The Finns probably will end up on our side because they guessed wrong and were left high and dry by Germany's inability to maintain military contact with them when the Baltic front collapsed. Perhaps Spain will end the war on our side; it would be no stranger than the fact that Italy now is listed as a nominal ally.

The pressure of events is breaking up Germany's system of satellite and near-satellite states. The structure is collapsing day by day in Europe—and a climax is near. It is being undermined in South America—chiefly Argentina for which the Germans had high hopes. Military necessity is accomplishing what resolutions and pledges failed to accomplish—the disillusionment of Germany's fair weather friends in World War II.

POLITICAL WHIRLWINDS

Experts who threw up straw to find which way the wind is blowing in this week's primaries in New York and Missouri had better save their time.

In New York's 18th district, Vito Marcantonio, spokesman in congress for the city's pink fringe, and a candidate for nomination by the American Labor party, the Republican party and the Democratic party, won. He was opposed for the Democratic nomination by a Tammany politician, Martin Kennedy. Marcantonio customarily takes his party line from the Communists; he was, like many others of his ilk, anti-war and anti-United States up to the time that Russia was attacked by Germany and began to need help.

Hamilton Fish of New York's 29th district was counted among the isolationists up to Pearl Harbor, and this was supposed to defeat him, but it didn't. He and Rep. Marcantonio, as far apart as the poles on virtually everything under the sun, have cleared their first hurdle on the race to another term in Washington. Meanwhile, in Missouri, Sen. Bennett Champ Clark, whose opponent promised voters to be 100 per cent for Franklin D. Roosevelt, right or wrong, was beaten, ostensibly because of his isolationist leanings. Oddly enough, Sen. Gerald Nye of North Dakota won re-election by a narrow speak last June 27 on an almost identical record.

In short, the experts are more than welcome to whatever they can make of straws blowing in a whirlwind—but depend on it they will be around in a few days with the whole thing reduced to a mathematical formula.

STILL SOLID

The Gallup poll, busy at its quadrennial task of telling voters how they are going to vote, reports that the deep south is still solidly Democratic, which surprises no one. But the poll also finds that in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Texas Mr. Roosevelt's percentage as of July 27 would have been somewhat less than his percentage as of election day four years ago. The defection ranges from a drop of 12 per cent in Mississippi to a mere 1 per cent in Arkansas and Georgia—an average of approximately 6 per cent for the eight states.

Since the average solidity of the same states in 1940 was 85 per cent, it is evident that if it were to drop 6 percentage points every four years, the solid south would cease to be solid on or about 1970, barring unforeseen miracles. At that time, the two party system would have been instituted in the deep south and its 90-odd electoral votes would no longer be sewed up in advance. The prospect is only remotely encouraging, but it explains why, every four years, there is talk among politicians in the north about the possibility that this election may be the one that will make the difference. No doubt in the south the same vague hope is entertained about some day being able to pry Vermont out of the Republican column.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, August 5

THE ATTENTION and energies seem to be focused on the enjoyments, social, convivial, romantic and emotional adventures rather than the practical and workaday. In spite of setbacks, trivial disappointments and reverses there may be prospect of thrills and excitement, with much stirring in connection with celebrations or parties. A tendency to extravagance of funds and forces, in this indulgence should be curbed with prudence and discretion in all menacing situations, either in business, finance or personal engagements.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of surprise and commotion, with the pursuit of pleasure probably overshadowing all commonplace activities. The element of romance, adventure, hospitality and festivity may lure to over-indulgences or extravagances, with resultant regrets, loss or estrangements. Upheavals, change, new agreements or alliances should be wisely and prudently considered, lest there be penalties in health, funds and general wellbeing.

A child born on this day may have many strange adventures in life, some giving social or romantic happiness, others involving loss of substance and prestige. It should choose its associates with discretion.

Machine Diagnosis Limited

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE PATIENT who is always so anxious to have the doctor back up a machine in order to make a diagnosis is suffering from a deep seated conviction that the machine is more accurate than the human

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

being who is the diagnostician. And one reason that idea is false is that the machine simply furnishes some data, some facts, which have to go through the diagnostician's human mind before they can be interpreted, before they fall into the right category to form the proper conclusion.

The other and perhaps better reason such ideas are erroneous is that no machine on earth is as delicate and as beautifully competent as the diagnostician's human eye.

When a trained diagnostician looks at any abnormality—I care not what it be—a lump under the skin, a pair of tonsils, an aching joint, he instinctively begins to make notes. It is red, he asks himself, is it tender, how long has it been there, is it an inflammation, or a new growth, or a degeneration, did it start somewhere? And instinctively also he is fitting it into his acquaintance with the changes in human tissues, described by the science of pathology or diseased processes, until finally he has it classified. Then he knows more than any machine would ever be able to tell him, what the nature of this abnormal process is, what the cause is, what the outcome is likely to be, whether there is any way to cure or relieve it.

Extension of Vision
The basis of these judgments is largely the conditions which his eye has brought to him. Sometimes, as in the case of disease of the chest or the abdomen where it is located so deep the eye cannot see it, he depends on his fingers and his ears.

That is why any extension of vision is of such great value if medical work. We have had a good many such extensions in the last few years. Indeed the great value of the X-ray is that it is merely an extension of our eyes into opaque tissue. It reveals what we might see in bones, lungs, heart and stomach if we could tear aside the flesh. But it is no more than just the human eye operating under exceedingly favorable circumstances.

Then we have had quite an array of extensions of the eye into the cavities of the body by means of electric lighted instruments. The ophthalmoscope to see the retina of the eye was the first of these. Then came the otoscope to see the eardrum, and the laryngoscope to see the vocal cords. And then a series of eyes on sticks that could be thrust into the dark recesses of the body, the cystoscope, to see the inside of the bladder and the proctoscope to see the inside of the rectum.

Peritonscope and Gastroscope
The latest of these extensions of the eye are the peritonscope and the gastroscope. The peritonscope is an electric lighted stick which can be thrust through a minute opening in the abdominal wall and by moving it around can be put into position to see all the organs of that region. Surgeons have long had a procedure they called an exploratory laparotomy. This was used in cases which had puzzled the attending physicians and surgeons and consisted of opening the abdomen as for an operation to see exactly what was present. The peritonscope does an exploratory laparotomy with a tenth of the fuss. None but a local anesthetic is required and the incision is no bigger than enough to admit a lead pencil. Many cases supposed to be cancer have been found to be relatively benign gallbladder or uterine disease in this way.

The gastroscope performs the same function for the inside of the stomach. It is a flexible tube with an electric light and lenses in the end which the patient swallows so that the entire inside of the stomach can be visualized. Its great successes have been in the early recognition of cancer of the stomach—early enough so that they can be successfully removed surgically.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

G. O. P. CLAIMS

These conditions have produced a misunderstanding and can and must be remedied.

With most of the governors returning to their homes, Dewey remained in St. Louis to confer with labor, business, political and other leaders before entraining tonight for Pawling, N. Y., where he will spend the weekend.

Unanimous Conclusions

Detailed conclusions reached unanimously by the governors, who also organized politically for the presidential campaign, included a recommendation for coordination of federal and state systems to eliminate "double taxation."

In this connection, the Republican executives said that while there must be economy this did not mean the indiscriminate slashing and cutting of governmental budgets.

Calling for an end to the "duplication" of federal and local governmental expenses, the report said executives must be on the alert to see that public funds are not wasted and that the number of employees is no larger than is absolutely necessary.

Recommendation of the federal administration of welfare agencies was urged.

The report outlined a social welfare program in which the state and local communities would improve existing hospitalization, clinical treatment, visiting nurses and their health activities, with the work of existing agencies more fully integrated.

"There should be no political control of the profession of medicine," the report said.

The governors also called for "an immediate drastic change in the laws and methods of administration of existing labor laws."

The group endorsed federal regulation of wages, hours and child labor, saying the states should supplement these minimum standards in line with local conditions.

The governors repeated a Republican platform pledge in calling for "cooperation, coordination and understanding" between federal and state governments in the development of water resources.

Final points in the policy proclamation were issued in the weeks of a meeting which found the Republican organization spilling for a fight and challenging the New Deal's approach to domestic problems.

Palestine Water Supply Better As Leak Is Found

EAST PALESTINE, Aug. 4.—The water supply here — dangerously low yesterday as the reservoir was inexplicably drained — has shown a surprising recovery today, although rains on lawn sprinkling and unnecessary use are still in effect.

A leak, beneath E. North ave., was found last night in a six-inch line. Officials said it would not be sufficient to drain the 600,000 gallons which were lost in the two-day period.

The supply is building up again today, but the sprinkling ban is being maintained until a good reserve can be accumulated.

'Prankster' Who Burned Alliance Boy Is Fined

ALLIANCE, Aug. 4.—Municipal Judge Harry E. Morschling showed today he did not regard as humorous the prank of throwing cigarette lighter fluid on a person's clothing and then lighting it.

He imposed a fine of $25 and costs upon Robert F. Kimes, 18, charged with assault. The charge was preferred on behalf of Edwin Gobeil, 18, reported by Police Chief H. L. Stark as painfully burned when fluid was tossed on to his shirt. Two other boys were also reported involved.

ARMY TRANSIT

deadline for resumption of service under an order from President Roosevelt setting the lines in the name of the government.

The stoppage began in protest against the transportation company's upgrading of Negroes to operating jobs.

Five truckloads of strikers stopped a Philadelphia Transportation Co. emergency repair wagon in a residential street and warned the crew to answer no calls.

After seven trains had pulled out of the 69th st. elevated terminal, a band of strikers appeared on the platform and attempted to dissuade other crews from making their runs. Only one crew walked out again.

14 Persons Hospitalized

Eleven windows were smashed during the night in a flareup of race disorder which already had sent 14 persons to hospitals.

At 8:30 a. m. heavy details of police were dispatched to the Hunting Park station of the Broad street subway on a report of a "bad disturbance" there.

Police reported the station was "all quiet" when they arrived, but said they were told strikers had been attempting to dissuade residents from boarding the occasional trains.

Meanwhile hundreds of thousands of Philadelphians again hitch-hiked, walked or used makeshift transportation provided by employees, to get to their jobs.

The army gave no immediate indication of what action it would take if complete service was not restored.

A mass meeting of many of the Philadelphia Transportation Co.'s 6,000 employees voted last night to continue the blackout on the ground that the racial issue which prompted the work stoppage three days ago had not been settled by government seizure.

The men walked out originally in protest to the upgrading of eight Negroes to jobs as motormen.

Ringling Brothers Show Reopens In Akron Friday

AKRON, Aug. 4.—The "come-back" performance of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus opens today—nearly a month after flames snuffed out 166 lives July 6 when the show's "big top" burned at Hartford, Conn.

Circus employees regard today's opener as a test of whether the circus can come back in outdoor performances without a tent, and are confident the show in Akron's Rubber bowl will be successful.

FILM STAR NAMED IN JUVENILE PROBE

(By Associated Press)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 4.—St. Joseph County Prosecutor Arthur F. Scherr said today affidavits had been filed charging four persons, including Jackie Cooper, 22, of Beverly Hills, Calif., whom he identified as a star in a recent movie called "Where Are Your Children," with contributing to and encouraging the delinquency of minors.

Cooper has been stationed at the University of Notre Dame here as a Navy V-12 student since last November.

Also charged in the affidavits, which Scherr said grew out of a police investigation of a party at the LaSalle hotel here the night of July 22, were Pauline Frederic, 19, of South Bend; George Bender, a V-12 student at Notre Dame, and Olie Lowery, a wet waiter.

Prosecutor Scherr said Cooper was charged specifically with contributing to the delinquency of a 15-year-old South Bend girl by furnishing her intoxicants and by encouraging her to remain away from home overnight in a room engaged by him at the hotel.

Two affidavits were filed against Miss Frederic, who Scherr said was identified as Cooper's companion at the party. She was charged with contributing to the delinquency of the 15-year-old girl and another girl 16 years old, both of whom, Scherr said, she invited to the party.

Bender, Scherr stated, was charged with contributing to the 15-year-old girl's delinquency through immoral relations with her, while Lowery was charged with contributing by serving intoxicants.

The affidavits were signed by Levi Nulff of the police department, who aided in a two-week police investigation, Scherr said.

report of Ross County Agent Fred Keeler, who said damage to the corn crop is already $1,000,000 and to soybeans $500,000 in his county.

Rain Badly Needed

All agriculture authorities agreed that if rains do not fall soon losses will be much higher.

Richland County Agent George B. Ganyard said damage to corn in his vicinity was "serious," and that soybeans looked "bad." Tomatoes, he added, are in danger "unless rain falls next week."

Knox county agent, George Everhart said some upland corn was already lost, bottom-land corn needed rain badly, and soybean and garden damage was "heavy."

Payette County Agent W. W. Montgomery said the sweet corn yield from several thousand acres would be "about 25 per cent of the normal crop."

Stark county yields were reported far below normal, with potatoes, oats, garden crops and fruits the chief drouth sufferers.

C. D. McGrew, Trumbull county agent, said corn had been damaged 20 per cent since July 1, but was still better than a year ago. Soybean damage in a like period is 15 per cent, with the crop 25 per cent above a year ago. Gardens, he said, are ahead of last year's, but damaged 30 per cent since July 1.

Van Wert county also reported crops normal, but in danger if rain does not come soon. Gardens are already slightly damaged, but all crops are 50 per cent better than a year ago, which was too wet in that section.

Record Temperatures Yesterday

The Ohio sugar beet crop, now in the state of development where rain is needed, was reported suffering in Hancock and surrounding counties.

Except for local thundershowers, there was no promise of rainfall anywhere in the state today, following yesterday's record heat of 97 in Cleveland and Youngstown, and a 96 which tied a 47-year record in Columbus.

Tiffin went into its 41st day without rain, and many other sections

Potters Will Iron Out Vacation Issue Before Labor Board
To clarify the time element in the recent War Labor board directive regarding vacation with pay for pottery workers, a special hearing will be held Monday afternoon in Cleveland before the Regional War Labor board. It was decided yesterday at a joint meeting of employers and union officials in East Liverpool.
Still undecided as to just what the provisions of the WLB directive mean, both union and employer representatives are slated to appear in Cleveland to hear the WLB's interpretation of a clause in question. The clause disputed by both sides leaves the actual date for beginning the vacation with pay arrangement in the air, reports from the meeting yesterday say.
As the directive reads on this particular subject, both groups have their own opinions. Employers believe just one week's vacation or pay is due employees under the ruling and union officials think two weeks should be forthcoming.
The particular clause in question reads, "During the war emergency, when the granting of vacation periods would impair the company's production operation, employees may receive pay in lieu of time off at the discretion of the employer. The vacations directed herein shall be made effective for the year 1943."
The date for the biennial wage conference of pottery owners and union officials was set for Sept. 12 and will be held in Cleveland. It was announced. At that time the two groups will draw up the wage agreement to go into effect Oct. 1.

Radio Programs

Looking to the day when television networks could be commonplace, plans for further experiments to that end are being announced almost constantly. Heretofore undeveloped ultra-ultra short waves, measured in several thousand megacycles, would be used.

The newest step came in the joint application of General Electric of Schenectady and International Business Machines of Washington for licenses to operate an experimental radio relay circuit linking Schenectady, New York and Washington. The system would employ automatic relay transmitters installed atop steel masts 30 miles apart, with terminal stations in large cities.

Millenium Arrives — John Law Admits Doubt

HOUSTON, Tex.—R. G. Shoups of Houston was so convincing in his claim that he "really did come to a stop" at a stop sign that Traffic Court Judge Walter Chalmers scratched his head and turned to the arresting officer quizzically.

Patrolman M. F. Davidson first grinned, then blushed, and blurted:

"It's possible, your honor. There were lots of cars. Even a policeman makes a mistake once in his life."

His reward was hearty handshake from the alleged offender. Judge: "Case dismissed."

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN

©1943 HUTTLE BROWN & CO. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

Services for Nora—on April 15—were private. Only the family—Mr. Queen, Judge and Clarice Martin, Dr. Willoughby, and some of John F.'s people from the bank. Frank Lloyd was seen about the edge of the group, straining for a glimpse of the lovely profile in the copper casket. He looked as if he had not taken his clothes off for a week, or slept during that time. When Hermy's eye rested on him, he shrank and disappeared.... There were perhaps twenty mourners in all.

Hermy was heroic. She sat up straight, eyes steady and she didn't cry. Pat said it was because she was all cried out. Lola had to take John F. by the hand....

Looking back on it, Ellery saw the finer points of Jim Haight's psychology. But that was after the fact. Beforehand it was impossible to tell, because Jim acted his part perfectly. He fooled them including the author-detective.

Jim came to the cemetery between two detectives, seemingly ignoring them, looking neither to right nor to left, on the path under the aged trees up to the top of the hill where the newly-turned earth gaped.

Most of Wrightville watched from a decent distance. The Wrights stood about the grave in a mournful group, Lola and Pat pressing close to Hermione and their father. Close to them were Ellery Queen, Judge Eli Martin and Clarice, Doc Willoughby and some others; and, of course, Dr. Doolittle.

When Jim was brought up, a tiny murmur arose among the on-lookers. Hermy's lips were seen to move. Jim went over to her and kissed her. He paid no attention to anyone else; after that he just stood there at the grave, a thin figure of loneliness.

Soon the interment service was over, and they were shuffling down the walk, Hermy straining backward to catch a last glimpse of the casket.... The crowd at the gate parted silently.

Then Jim Haight did it.

One moment he was trudging along between the detectives, a dead man staring at the ground; the next he came alive. He tripped one of his guards. The man fell backward. Jim struck the second guard on the jaw, so that the man fell on his brother officer and they thrashed about, like wrestlers, trying to regain their feet.

In those few seconds Jim was gone, running through the crowd like a bull, bowling people over, dodging and twisting....

Ellery shouted at him, but Jim ran on.

The detectives were on their feet now, running too, revolvers out uselessly. To fire might mean hitting innocent people.

And then Ellery saw that Jim's address was not so mad at all. For a quarter way down the hill, past all the parked vehicles, stood a single large car, its nose pointed away from the cemetery. No one was in it; but the motor had been kept running. Ellery knew, for Jim leaped in and the car shot forward at once.

By the time the two detectives reached a clear space, and fired down the hill, the limousine was a toy in the distance, careening crazily at a great speed.

After another few moments, the detectives reached their own car and took up the chase, one driving, the other firing. But Jim was well out of range as the two cars disappeared.

The crowd shouted, and swept over the Wrights and their friends, and automobiles began flying down the hill in clouds of dust.

Hermy lay on the living-room settee, and Pat and Lola were applying cold compresses to her head while John F. turned the pages of one of his stamp albums with great deliberation, as if it were one of the most important things in the world. He sat in a corner by the window to catch the late afternoon light. Clarice Martin was holding Hermy's hand tightly in an ecstasy of remorse, crying over her defection during the trial and over Nora and over this last shocking blow.

At the fireplace Dr. Willoughby and Mr. Queen conversed in low tones. Then Judge Martin came in from outdoors. And with him was Carter Bradford.

Everything stopped, as if an enemy had walked into camp. But Carter ignored it. He was quite pale, but held himself erect; and he kept looking at Pat who had Martin was frankly frightened. She glanced quickly at her husband, but Eli shook his head and went over to the window to seat himself by John F.

"I don't want to intrude Mrs. Wright," said Carter stiffly. "But I had to tell you how badly I felt about—all this."

"Thank you, Carter," said Hermy. "Lola, stop babbling me! Carter, what about—?" Hermy swallowed—"Jim?"

"Jim got away, Mrs. Wright."

"I'm glad," cried Pat. "Oh, I'm so very glad!"

Carter glanced her way. "Don't say that, Patty. That sort of thing never winds up right. Nobody gets away." Jim would have been better advised to have stuck it out.

"So that you could hound him to his death, I suppose. All over again!"

John F. left his stamp album where it was. He put his thin hand on Carter's arm. "It was nice of you to come here today, Cart. I'm sorry if I was ever harsh with you. How does it look?"

"Bad, Mr. Wright." Carter's lips tightened. "Naturally, the alarm is out. All highways are being watched. It's true he got away, but it's only a question of time before he's captured."

"Bradford," inquired Mr. Queen from the fireplace, "have you traced the getaway car?"

"Yes."

"Looked like a put-up job to me," muttered Dr. Willoughby. "That car was in a mighty convenient place, and the motor was running!"

"Whose car is it?" queried Lola.

"It was rented from Homer Findlay's garage in Low Village this morning."

"Rented!" exclaimed Clarice Martin. "By whom?"

"Roberta Roberts."

Ellery murmured "Ah," in a tone of dark satisfaction, and nodded as if that were all he had wanted to know. But the others were surprised.

Lola tossed her head. "Good for her!"

"Carter allowed me to talk to the woman myself," said Judge Eli Martin wearily. "She's smart. Insists she hired the car just to drive to the cemetery this morning."

"And that she left the motor running by mistake," added Carter Bradford dryly.

"And was it a coincidence that she also turned the car about so that it pointed down the hill?" asked Mr. Queen.

"That's what I asked her," said Carter. "Oh, there's no question about her complicity, and we're holding her. But that doesn't get Jim Haight back, nor does it give us a case against this Roberts woman. We'll probably have to let her go."

"She visited Jim on Sunday," remarked Ellery reflectively.

"Also yesterday. I'm convinced she arranged the escape with Jim then."

"What difference does it make?" Hermy sighed. "Escape—no escape—Jim won't ever escape." Then Hermy said a queer thing, considering how she had always claimed she felt about her son-in-law and his guilt. Hermy exclaimed, "Poor Jim!"

The news arrived at ten o'clock that same night. Carter Bradford came over again and this time he went directly to Pat Wright and took her hand. She was so astonished she forgot to snatch it away. Then he said gently: "It's up to you and Lola now, Pat."

"What.... on earth are you talking about?" asked Pat in a shrill little voice.

"Dakin's men have found the car Jim escaped in."

"Found it?"

Ellery Queen rose from a dark corner and came over into the light. "If it's bad news, keep your voices down. Mrs. Wright's just gone to bed, and John F. doesn't look as if he could take any more today."

Where was the car found?"

"At the bottom of a ravine off Route 478A, up in the hills. About fifty miles from here."

"Lord!" breathed Pat, staring.

"It had crashed through the highway rail," reported Carter. "Just past a hairpin turn. Dropped about two hundred feet."

Pat sat down in the love seat by the fireplace, looking up at Cart as if he were a judge about to pronounce doom.

"Found in the car," Carter turned aside. "Dakin's men found it and looked humbly at Pat. 'So that's the end of the case.'"

"Poor Jim!" whispered Pat.

"I want to talk to you two," said Mr. Queen.

It was very late. Hermione had heard, and had gone to pieces. Strange that the funeral of her daughter should have found her strong, and the news of her son-in-law's death weak.... John F. was in hardly better case. He had taken to trembling, and the doctor noticed it, and packed him off to bed in a guest room while Lola assisted with Hermy, and Pat helped her father up the stairs.... Now it was over, and they were both asleep, and Lola had locked herself in, and Dr. Willoughby had gone home sagging.

"I want to talk to you two," said Mr. Queen.

Carter was still there. He had been a bed of rock for Hermy this night. She had actually clung to him while she wept, and Mr. Queen thought this, too, was strange. And then he thought: No, this is the rock, the last rock, and Hermy clings. If she let's go, she drowns, they all drown. That is how she must feel.

And he repeated: "I want to talk to you two."

WOULD DROP FOOD, ADMISSION TAXES

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4—State Tax Commissioner William S. Ewalt recommended yesterday repeal of the sales tax on food and the state admissions tax so that they might be retained as local excises by financially-stricken communities.

He also advocated full distribution of cigarette dealers' license fees to local government, instead of allowing the state 50 per cent as is done now.

In a report to Gov. John W. Bricker on new policies he would like incorporated in Ohio's 1944-45 tax and fiscal program, Ewalt estimated the proposed changes would result in an annual loss of revenue to the state of $7,500,000.

He asserted, however, there was no need for the state to preempt fields of revenue "simply because relatively few subdivisions need additional funds which they themselves could raise by the state vacating such fields."

He added:

"There is no reason, therefore, why taxpayers in community 'A' should continue to pay amusement taxes and taxes on food if neither the state nor community 'A' needs any part of this revenue, simply because such taxes should be maintained in community 'B' which needs such revenue."

"In this way, instead of traveling still farther along the road to centralization, local governments will be helped to stand on their own financial bottoms and swing away from the practice of coming to some higher level of government for a handout."

Longer Wearing Clothes Forecast for Postwar Era

(By United Press)

ST. LOUIS—After the war, the Monsanto Chemical Co. reports, your pants won't shine, your stockings won't run and clothes will last twice as long because of radical developments in the chemical treatment of fibers.

Moreover, the company says, chemically treated trousers will retain their crease, even in the rain and when taken out of a suitcase, and cottons and rayons will have increasingly fast colors and will resist heat, water and acid.

These developments, according to the company, are based on new techniques in treating either the surface or the interior of the fabrics, without changing the feel or the texture.

In some cases, treatment involves the deposit of a sub-microscopic film of plastic. Runs in stockings are prevented by deposits of silica or sub-microscopic grains of sand which prevent the fibers from slipping out of position when they are knitted.

Paxsons, Demings Win Fourth Round Games

Schaeffer Hurls Two-Hit Fray To Beat News; Pump Team Wins 2-0 Over Sheens

Behind another top-notch pitching performance by Mutt Schaeffer, Paxsons scored eight runs on eight hits to down the News, 8-3, yesterday at Centennial park as Sheens was defeated, 2-0, by Demings in a tight ball game.

Following two hit ball, Schaeffer also banged out two safeties in three times at bat to help Paxsons to their first win of the season over the News in four tries.

Sheens played errorless ball behind Francis Lanney's four-hit game, which equalled Ken Brudery's showing. Both hurlers had the game under control most of the way, but Demings managed to grab two runs on their fourth hits while they held the Monks aggregation scoreless.

The News started in the third inning with the first and second and two men were out. Paxsons came back in the fourth to take the lead with three runs and collected three more in the fifth when Walt Brian drove a high, long triple far, out to left field with the bases loaded. Paxsons got two more in the sixth and the News one in the fifth and one in the seventh.

Orry "Hoss" Wright worked the mound for the News for his fourth try and allowed the hard-hitting opposition eight hits. Schaeffer's game was nearly perfect as only a pop single came first and a bunt counted as good blows. Walks were issued frequently by both hurlers and on several occasions the innings ended within the bases loaded.

Demings tallied once in the third and again in the fourth for their runs as the game went most of the way air-tight.

Charlie Franks, leading Sheen batsman, had a big night at the plate, clouting two of the four Monks hits and playing a bang-up game at first. Franks is now hitting .375 and is approaching the league leadership.

TRIBE DROPS TWO, NOW CLOSE TO 5TH

Chicago Is Still "Jinx" Club To Slipping Indian Crew

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Chicago's Indians were nursing pennant hopes a week ago but today their first division position was imperiled.

Yesterday's 3 to 2 and 5 to 1 defeats by their 1944 nemesis, the Chicago White Sox, dropped the Tribesmen eight and a half games behind the pace-setting St. Louis Browns. The Redskins hold fourth place by only half a game over Chicago and Detroit, who are deadlocked for fifth.

First In Six Weeks
The double setback was the Tribe's first series loss in six weeks. The defeats were the 10th and 11th in 14 games with the team that Cleveland beat 15 times last year.

Al Smith gave up only six hits in losing the first game, but his wild pitch allowed Chicago to score the tying run from third base in the eighth inning.

Allie Reynolds was the losing hurler in the nightcap, although he yielded only three hits in the seven innings he worked before retiring for a pinch-hitter.

(Pinch-Hitting for Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Training will tell! Out at Oxford, O., the V-12 unit at Miami university was playing a baseball game. Major John Robb, commander of the Marine detachment, veteran of Guadalcanal and former Hanover (Ind.) college athlete, was pitching.

Behind the plate was a Marine private. One of the major's slants went into the dirt, squirted away from the kid catcher, and a runner on first scooted to second. The catcher pulled off his mask, dived for the ball, but retrieved it too late to make a throw.

The catcher looked at the pitcher. After all, the latter was his commanding officer, and the kid couldn't forget it, even in the heat of baseball battle. The kid said:

"I'm sorry, dog-gone it . . . sir!"

JUST THE BERRIES
If we were a baseball player, and could pick our job, we'd take over for Joe Just, Cincinnati Red catcher; Roy Berres, Giant catcher, or Lena Blackburn, Philadelphia Athletic coach; Berres has been up only once in five games, while Blackburn gets $36 from the American league for sending each club a can of special dirt with which the umpires rub the baseballs before each game. What a life those guys lead—and that Berres was a holdout, yet.

WE ASKED YOU FIRST
No. 1—What major league player gained the highest rank in the first World war?
No. 2—What catcher leads the list in stolen bases for receivers? (Tip—it's not Lombardi.)
(Answers at end of column—but don't look now.)

Kenney Jones, Peoria Journal-Transcript: "The circus is now playing the ball parks—and the clowns should feel right at home."

WE JUST LEARNED
The figure 56 is a magic one in sports—Joe DiMaggio hit in 56 consecutive games, Ben Hogan finished in the money in 56 straight golf tournaments, Greg Rice won 56 straight races, Walter Johnson pitched 56 shutout innings in a row, and the Pittsburgh Pirates failed to score in 56 straight innings. (Heinz beat 'em all by one.)

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO—Rookie Don Johnson, the Chicago Cubs' smooth-working second baseman, almost gave up trying to become a chip off the old block.

After spending 10 years prying around in the minors—playing with Seattle, Sacramento, San Francisco and Hollywood in the Pacific Coast league; Tulsa in the Texas Coast, and Milwaukee of the American Association—Don can be fully recognized as following his father's footsteps.

Dad With White Sox

When Don was just a tyke he had quite an edge on his neighborhood pals. His dad, Ernie, was a shortstop for the Chicago White Sox from 1920 through 1922 and was with the New York Yankees from 1923 through 1925. Don's dad later took a whirl at managing Portland and Seattle. Since 1924 he has been a scout for the Boston Red Sox.

"Sure, dad helped me a lot and was my inspiration," says Don. "But he always believed I should make my own breaks, and that was what I had to do. He certainly didn't force baseball on me—he wanted me to pick my own profession."

"He would grab a bat and show me how to hold it. He would put on a glove and toss hot ones at me. But while he was managing clubs he never let me go in the dressing rooms or let me do much running around on the field."

"About the most I got to do was sit up in the stands and watch the games. Mother and I used to travel some with him when he was with the White Sox and Yanks and it was a thrill to watch him play."

Played At Oregon State

Don played baseball for Santa Ana, Calif., junior college and then for Oregon State. He took a course in commercial business, but after two years decided to quit school and travel around the world.

"Back in those times, baseball clubs were filled up and it looked like an impossibility to break into pro ball," he recalls. "I was overwhelmed with an urge to sail the seas and I spent a lot of time down on the Seattle docks trying to land

Win Over Jap Tanks

OKLAHOMA CITY—Staff Sgt. Jack Pepper of Oklahoma City, Marine corps combat correspondent, tells how an Oklahoma sergeant used baseball pitching form to defeat a Japanese tank.

The sergeant, Dean T. Squires of Taloga, Okla., was fighting on Salpian when a Jap tank came toward him. Having only a rifle, Squires ran. The tank chased him.

As Squires passed an abandoned fox hole he saw a demolition kit in it. He grabbed it. The tank shot past him. The sergeant pitched the demolition charge at the rear of the tank and his aim was true.

The tank was wrecked.

WE ARE OFFERING YOU THIS 55-ACRE
ORCHARD FARM AT A PRICE THAT WILL ASTONISH YOU!

This fruit farm should interest any one that is interested in an orchard. This is an ideal location. 37 acres of apple orchard of the very best varieties. The buildings on this farm are located right on the Columbiana-Middletown Road which is about a city block off of Route 7. Part of the orchard land goes down to Route 7. The Columbiana road runs through the orchard which means that there is land on both sides of the road. There will be from five to six thousand bushels of apples this year.

Is improved with good 8-room house under slate roof. House has electricity, electric pump, furnace and good cellar. There is also free gas for cooking. Practically new barn. Storage shed and two-car garage.

Will include the livestock, machinery and orchard equipment.
 Owners are 75 years of age and can no longer do the work. Come in and make me an offer. Owners are anxious to sell.

Send for my free 1944 catalog of farm bargains.

Flashes Of Life

(By Associated Press)
MANSFIELD—Mis-printed cards placed in downtown windows by the United States Employment service caused a bit of hilarity among townspeople who read: "The war news are good—keep them good."

HAMILTON—Robert Carroll is an unhappy dog owner with this complaint:
His dog slept soundly on the porch while a burglar forced a window and took $7, but barked loud and long when Detective William Blair and Patrolman Robert Ferdelman arrived to investigate.

TOLEDO—A menu in a local hotel luncheon contained good news for the "Wimpy clan." A note explained:
"We are pleased to advise that because of the recent changes in rationing requirements, we have been able to increase the size of our hamburgers. The same fine quality of meat will be used and the price will be the same as heretofore."

DAYTON—It wasn't a very big fire—just the roof and corner of a house in North Dayton were burned, but it happened in the night, and with the smoke and everything, it seemed a major catastrophe to the harried owner.
In his nightshirt—coughing and wheezing and fanning the smoke—he seized a big china vase in the hall, rushed to an upstairs bedroom window and threw it out with a mighty heave. Then he grabbed his wife's fur coat, raced through the smoke, held it tightly and carefully as he ran down the stairs, through the living room and far into the yard, where he laid it carefully on the grass.
Yes sir, presence of mind means a lot.

JULY DROUTH HITS CORN, OATS CROPS

With the temperature in the 90's for 11 days and a 55 per cent sunshine, July went on the records as one of the hot months. Weather Observer L. H. Copeland of Millport reveals in his monthly report.
The month had a maximum of 98 and a minimum of 43 degrees and precipitation was only 3.12 inches, compared with a 51-year normal of 4.46 degrees. There were 15 clear and 16 partly cloudy days, with thunderstorms on July 12 and 20.
The year is now ahead 25.4 degrees in temperature and short 3.58 inches in precipitation.
With both June and July below normal in rainfall and above normal in temperature, a severe drouth has affected all crops. Oats crop is light and corn prospects are poor. Early potatoes are reported as a failure. However, wheat was a good crop, averaging 25 to 40 bushels per acre.
Recent rains have improved all vegetation but more rain is needed as pastures are short.
Normal temperature for July is an average of 70.5 degrees. The warmest on record was 74.2 in 1934.

the coolest 66.7 in 1920. The wettest July, in 1941, brought 10.15 inches of rain, compared with a 51-year average of 4.46 inches. July, 1914, was the driest, with 1.47 inches.
Last year July was cooler and wetter. The high temperature was 90 and the low 38. With only 40 per cent sunshine, there were 20 rainy days with a total precipitation of 5.9 inches.

Dionne Quint's Chances 20 In 100 of Reaching 65

(By United Press)
NEW YORK—The Dionne quintuplets, who entered their 11th year, May 23, have survived odds encountered by one person in living to the age of 60, and now have at least 20 chances in 100 of celebrating their 65th birthday together, according to statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.
The Dionnes, only quintuplets to have lived so long, and the only set, with the exception of the recently reported Argentinian quint, to have survived more than a short time after birth, are entering the safest period of their lives, the statisticians said.
"According to present average mortality conditions, the chances are 98 in 100 that the girls will survive to 15; 68 in 100 that they will all reach 45," they said. "But actually their chances are much better than these average figures, because of the unusually good care that these girls have had and probably will continue to have."
